

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2025

WINTER WORDS
IN VARIOUS MOODS AND METRES

MACMILLAN AND CO., LIMITED
LONDON • BOMBAY • CALCUTTA • MADRAS
MELBOURNE

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY
NEW YORK • BOSTON • CHICAGO
DALLAS • ATLANTA • SAN FRANCISCO

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY
OF CANADA, LIMITED TORONTO

WINTER WORDS

IN VARIOUS MOODS AND METRES

BY

THOMAS HARDY

MACMILLAN AND CO., LIMITED
ST. MARTIN'S STREET, LONDON

1930

COPYRIGHT

First Edition October 1928

Reprinted October 1928

First Pocket Edition 1930

PRINTED IN GREAT BRITAIN
BY R. & R. CLARK, LIMITED, EDINBURGH

[This volume, though prepared for the press, would have undergone further revision, had the author lived to issue it on the birthday of which he left the number uninserted below.]

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

So far as I am aware, I happen to be the only English poet who has brought out a new volume of his verse on his . . . birthday, whatever may have been the case with the ancient Greeks, for it must be remembered that poets did not die young in those days.

This, however, is not the point of the present few preliminary words. My last volume of poems was pronounced wholly gloomy and pessimistic by reviewers—even by some of the more able class. My sense of the oddity of this verdict may be imagined when, in selecting them, I had been, as I thought, rather too liberal in admitting flippant, not to say farcical, pieces into the collection. However, I did not suppose that the licensed tasters had wilfully misrepresented the book, and said nothing, knowing well that they could not have read it.

As labels stick, I foresee readily enough that the same perennial inscription will be set on the following pages, and therefore take no trouble to argue on the proceeding, notwithstanding the surprises to which I could treat my critics by uncovering a place here and there to them in the volume.

This being probably my last appearance on the literary stage, I would say, more seriously, that though, alas, it would be idle to pretend that the publication of these poems can have much interest for me, the track having been adventured so many times before to-day, the pieces themselves have been prepared with reasonable care, if not quite with the zest of a young man new to print.

I also repeat what I have often stated on such occasions, that no harmonious philosophy is attempted in these pages—or in any bygone pages of mine, for that matter.

T. H.

CONTENTS

	PAGE
INTRODUCTORY NOTE	V
THE NEW DAWN'S BUSINESS	I
PROUD SONGSTERS	3
THOUGHTS AT MIDNIGHT	4
"I AM THE ONE"	6
THE PROPHETESS	8
A WISH FOR UNCONSCIOUSNESS	10
THE BAD EXAMPLE	11
TO LOUISA IN THE LANE	12
LOVE WATCHES A WINDOW	14
THE LOVE-LETTERS	16
AN UNKINDLY MAY	17
UNKEPT GOOD FRIDAYS	19
THE MOUND	21
LIDDELL AND SCOTT	23
CHRISTMASTIDE	26
RELUCTANT CONFESSION	27
EXPECTATION AND EXPERIENCE	29
ARISTODEMUS THE MESSENIAN	30
EVENING SHADOWS	41

	PAGE
THE THREE TALL MEN	42
THE LODGING-HOUSE FUCHSIAS	44
THE WHALER'S WIFE	45
THROWING A TREE	48
THE WAR-WIFE OF CATKNOLL	50
CONCERNING HIS OLD HOME	53
HER SECOND HUSBAND HEARS HER STORY	55
YULETIDE IN A YOUNGER WORLD	57
AFTER THE DEATH OF A FRIEND	59
THE SON'S PORTRAIT	60
LYING AWAKE	62
THE LADY IN THE FURS	63
CHILDHOOD AMONG THE FERNS	65
A COUNTENANCE	67
A POET'S THOUGHT	69
SILENCES	70
"I WATCHED A BLACKBIRD"	72
A NIGHTMARE, AND THE NEXT THING	73
TO A TREE IN LONDON	75
THE FELLED ELM AND SHE	77
HE DID NOT KNOW ME	78
SO VARIOUS	80
A SELF-GLAMOURER	83
THE DEAD BASTARD	85
THE CLASPED SKELETONS	86
IN THE MARQUEE	89
AFTER THE BURIAL	91
THE MONGREL	93

CONTENTS

ix

PAGE

CONCERNING AGNES	95
HENLEY REGATTA	97
AN EVENING IN GALILEE	98
THE BROTHER	101
WE FIELD-WOMEN	103
A PRACTICAL WOMAN	104
SQUIRE HOOPER	105
"A GENTLEMAN'S SECOND-HAND SUIT"	108
"WE SAY WE SHALL NOT MEET"	110
SEEING THE MOON RISE	111
SONG TO AURORE	112
HE NEVER EXPECTED MUCH	113
STANDING BY THE MANTELPIECE	115
BOYS THEN AND NOW	117
THAT KISS IN THE DARK	118
A NECESSITARIAN'S EPITAPH	119
BURNING THE HOLLY	120
SUSPENSE	124
THE SECOND VISIT	125
OUR OLD FRIEND DUALISM	127
FAITHFUL WILSON	128
GALLANT'S SONG	129
A PHILOSOPHICAL FANTASY	130
A QUESTION OF MARRIAGE	136
THE LETTER'S TRIUMPH	138
A FORGOTTEN MINIATURE	140
WHISPERED AT THE CHURCH-OPENING	142
IN WEATHERBURY STOCKS	144

	PAGE
A PLACID MAN'S EPITAPH	146
THE NEW BOOTS	147
THE MUSING MAIDEN	149
LORNA THE SECOND	151
A DAUGHTER RETURNS	152
THE THIRD KISSING-GATE	154
DRINKING SONG	155
THE TARRYING BRIDEGROOM	159
THE DESTINED PAIR	160
A MUSICAL INCIDENT	161
JUNE LEAVES AND AUTUMN	163
NO BELL-RINGING	165
" I LOOKED BACK "	168
THE AGED NEWSPAPER SOLILOQUIZES	170
CHRISTMAS: 1924	171
THE SINGLE WITNESS	172
HOW SHE WENT TO IRELAND	174
DEAD " WESSEX " THE DOG TO THE HOUSE- HOLD	175
THE WOMAN WHO WENT EAST	177
NOT KNOWN	179
THE BOY'S DREAM	180
THE GAP IN THE WHITE	182
FAMILY PORTRAITS	184
THE CATCHING BALLET OF THE WEDDING CLOTHES	187
A WINSOME WOMAN	192
THE BALLAD OF LOVE'S SKELETON	193

CONTENTS

xi

PAGE

A PRIVATE MAN ON PUBLIC MEN . . .	196
CHRISTMAS IN THE ELGIN ROOM . . .	197
"WE ARE GETTING TO THE END" . . .	200
HE RESOLVES TO SAY NO MORE . . .	202

THE NEW DAWN'S BUSINESS

WHAT are you doing outside my walls,
O Dawn of another day ?
I have not called you over the edge
Of the heathy ledge,
So why do you come this way,
With your furtive footstep without sound
here,
And your face so deedily gray ?

“ I show a light for killing the man
Who lives not far from you,
And for bringing to birth the lady's child,
Nigh domiciled,
And for earthing a corpse or two,
And for several other such odd jobs round
here
That Time to-day must do.

“ But you he leaves alone (although,
As you have often said,

2 THE NEW DAWN'S BUSINESS

You are always ready to pay the debt

You don't forget

You owe for board and bed :)

The truth is, when men willing are found here

He takes those loth instead."

PROUD SONGSTERS

THE thrushes sing as the sun is going,
And the finches whistle in ones and pairs,
And as it gets dark loud nightingales
In bushes
Pipe, as they can when April wears,
As if all Time were theirs.

These are brand new birds of twelve-months' growing,
Which a year ago, or less than twain,
No finches were, nor nightingales,
Nor thrushes,
But only particles of grain,
And earth, and air, and rain.

THOUGHTS AT MIDNIGHT

MANKIND, you dismay me
When shadows waylay me !—
Not by your splendours
Do you affray me,
Not as pretenders
To demonic keenness,
Not by your meanness,
Nor your ill-teachings,
Nor your false preachings,
Nor your banalities
And immoralities,
Nor by your daring
Nor sinister bearing ;
But by your madnesses
Capping cool badnesses,
Acting like puppets
Under Time's buffets ;
In superstitions
And ambitions
Moved by no wisdom,
Far-sight, or system,

THOUGHTS AT MIDNIGHT 5

Led by sheer senselessness
And presciencelessness
Into unreason
And hideous self-treason. . . .
God, look he on you,
Have mercy upon you !

Part written 25th May 1906.

“ I AM THE ONE ”

I AM the one whom ringdoves see
Through chinks in boughs
When they do not rouse
In sudden dread,
But stay on cooing, as if they said :
“ Oh ; it's only he.”

I am the passer when up-eared hares,
Stirred as they eat
The new-sprung wheat,
Their munch resume
As if they thought : “ He is one for whom Nobody cares.”

Wet-eyed mourners glance at me
As in train they pass
Along the grass
To a hollowed spot,
And think : “ No matter ; he quizzes not
Our misery.”

I hear above : “ We stars must lend
No fierce regard
To his gaze, so hard Bent on us thus,— Must scathe him not. He is one with us
Beginning and end.”

THE PROPHETESS

I

“NOW shall I sing
That pretty thing
‘The Mocking-Bird’? ”—And sing it straight did she.
I had no cause
To think it was
A Mocking-bird in truth that sang to me.

2

Not even the glance
She threw askance
Foretold to me, nor did the tune or rhyme,
That the words bore
A meaning more
Than that they were a ditty of the time.

3

But after years
Of hopes and fears,
And all they bring, and all they take away,
I found I had heard
The Mocking-bird
In person singing there to me that day.

A WISH FOR UNCONSCIOUSNESS

IF I could but abide
As a tablet on a wall,
Or a hillock daisy-pied,
Or a picture in a hall,
And as nothing else at all,
I should feel no doleful achings,
I should hear no judgment-call,
Have no evil dreams or wakings,
No uncouth or grisly care ;
In a word, no cross to bear.

THE BAD EXAMPLE

FIE, Aphrodite, shamming you are no mother,
And your maternal markings trying to smother,
As you were maiden, now you love
another ! . . .
If one like you need such pretence to noose
him,
Indulgence in too early fires beware you,
All girls yet virgin, and have constant care
you Become not staled by use as she has, ere
you
Meet your most-loved ; lest, tumbled, you should lose him.

Partly from Meleager.

TO LOUISA IN THE LANE

MEET me again as at that time
In the hollow of the lane ;
I will not pass as in my prime
I passed at each day's wane.
—Ah, I remember !
To do it you will have to see Anew this sorry scene wherein you have ceased to be !

But I will welcome your aspen form
As you gaze wondering round
And say with spectral frail alarm, “ Why am I still here found ?
—Ah, I remember !
It is through him with blitheful brow
Who did not love me then, but loves and draws me now ! ”

And I shall answer : “ Sweet of eyes,
Carry me with you, Dear,

TO LOUISA IN THE LANE 13

To where you donned this spirit-guise ;
It's better there than here ! ”

—Till I remember

Such is a deed you cannot do :
Wait must I, till with flung-off flesh I follow you.

LOVE WATCHES A WINDOW

“HERE in the window beaming across

Is he—the lineaments like him so !—
The saint whose name I do not know,
With the holy robe and the cheek aglow.
Here will I kneel as if worshipping God
When all the time I am worshipping you,
Whose Love I was—

You that with me will nevermore tread anew

The paradise-paths we trod ! ”

She came to that prominent pew each day,

And sat there. Zealously she came
And watched her Love—looking just the same

From the rubied eastern tracery-frame—
The man who had quite forsaken her
And followed another, it was thought.—

Be 't as it may,

LOVE WATCHES A WINDOW 15

Thinner, more thin, was the lady's figure wrought
By some ache, year on year.

Well, now she's dead, and dead is he
From whom her heart once drew delight,
Whose face glowed daily, lover-bright,
High in the glass before her sight.
And still the face is seen as clear
In the rubied eastern window-gleam
As formerly ;
But not seen now is a passioned woman's dream
Glowing beside it there.

THE LOVE-LETTERS

(IN MEMORIAM H. R.)

I MET him quite by accident
In a bye-path that he'd frequent.
And, as he neared, the sunset glow
Warmed up the smile of pleasantry
Upon his too thin face, while he Held a square packet up to me,
Of what, I did not know.

"Well," said he then ; " they are my old letters.
Perhaps she—rather felt them fetters. . . .
You see, I am in a slow decline,
And she's broken off with me. Quite right
To send them back, and true foresight ;
I'd got too fond of her ! To-night
I burn them—stuff of mine ! "

He laughed in the sun—an ache in his laughter—
And went. I heard of his death soon after.

AN UNKINDLY MAY

A SHEPHERD stands by a gate in a white smock-frock :
He holds the gate ajar, intently counting his flock.

The sour spring wind is blurting boisterous-wise,
And bears on it dirty clouds across the skies ;
Plantation timbers creak like rusty cranes,
And pigeons and rooks, dishevelled by late rains,
Are like gaunt vultures, sodden and unkempt,
And song-birds do not end what they attempt :
The buds have tried to open, but quite failing
Have pinched themselves together in their quailing.

The sun frowns whitely in eye-trying flaps
Through passing cloud-holes, mimicking audible taps.

“Nature, you’re not commendable to-day!”
I think. “Better to-morrow!” she seems to say.

That shepherd still stands in that white smock-frock,
Unnoting all things save the counting his flock.

UNKEPT GOOD FRIDAYS

THERE are many more Good Fridays
Than this, if we but knew
The names, and could relate them,
Of men whom rulers slew
For their goodwill, and date them
As runs the twelvemonth through.

These nameless Christs' Good Fridays,
Whose virtues wrought their end,
Bore days of bonds and burning,
With no man to their friend,
Of mockeries, and spurning ;
Yet they are all unpenned.

When they had their Good Fridays
Of bloody sweat and strain
Oblivion hides. We quote not
Their dying words of pain,
Their sepulchres we note not,
Unwitting where they have lain.

20 UNKEPT GOOD FRIDAYS

No annual Good Fridays
Gained they from cross and cord,
From being sawn asunder,
Disfigured and abhorred,
Smitten and trampled under :
Such dates no hands have scored.

Let be. Let lack Good Fridays
These Christs of unwrit names ;
The world was not even worthy
To taunt their hopes and aims,
As little of earth, earthy,
As his mankind proclaims.

Good Friday, 1927.

THE MOUND

FOR a moment pause :—
Just here it was ;

And through the thin thorn hedge, by the rays of the moon,

I can see the tree in the field, and beside it the mound—

Now sheeted with snow—whereon we sat that June

When it was green and round,
And she crazed my mind by what she coolly told—

The history of her undoing,
(As I saw it), but she called “ comradeship,”

That bred in her no rueing :
And saying she'd not be bound
For life to one man, young, ripe-yearred, or old,
Left me—an innocent simpleton to her viewing ;

For, though my accompt of years outscored her own,

Hers had more hotly flown. . . .

We never met again by this green mound,
To press as once so often lip on lip,

And palter, and pause :—

Yes ; here it was !

LIDDELL AND SCOTT

ON THE COMPLETION OF THEIR LEXICON

*(Written after the death of Liddell in 1898.
Scott had died some ten years earlier.)*

“ WELL, though it seems Beyond our dreams,”
Said Liddell to Scott, “ We’ve really got
To the very end,
All inked and penned
Blotless and fair
Without turning a hair,
This sultry summer day, A.D.
Eighteen hundred and forty-three.

“ I’ve often, I own,
Belched many a moan
At undertaking it,
And dreamt forsaking it.
—Yes, on to Pi,
When the end loomed nigh,

And friends said : ‘ You’ve as good as done,’

I almost wished we’d not begun.

Even now, if people only knew

My sinkings, as we slowly drew

Along through Kappa, Lambda, Mu,

They’d be concerned at my misgiving,

And how I mused on a College living

Right down to Sigma,

But feared a stigma

If I succumbed, and left old Donnegan

For weary freshmen’s eyes to con again :

And how I often, often wondered

What could have led me to have blundered

So far away from sound theology

To dialects and etymology ;

Words, accents not to be breathed by men

Of any country ever again ! ”

“ My heart most failed,

Indeed, quite quailed,”

Said Scott to Liddell,

“ Long ere the middle ! . . .

’Twas one wet dawn

When, slippers on,

And a cold in the head anew,

Gazing at Delta

I turned and felt a

Wish for bed anew,

And to let supersedings
 Of Passow's readings
 In dialects go.
 ' That German has read
 More than we ! ' I said ;
 Yea, several times did I feel so ! . . .

" O that first morning, smiling bland,
 With sheets of foolscap, quills in hand,
 To write ἀάατος and ἀαγής,
 Followed by fifteen hundred pages,
 What nerve was ours
 So to back our powers,
 Assured that we should reach ὠώδης
 While there was breath left in our bodies ! "

Liddell replied : " Well, that's past now ;
 The job's done, thank God, anyhow."

" And yet it's not," Considered Scott,
 " For we've to get
 Subscribers yet
 We must remember ;
 Yes ; by September."

" O Lord ; dismiss that. We'll succeed.
 Dinner is my immediate need.
 I feel as hollow as a fiddle,
 Working so many hours," said Liddell.

CHRISTMASTIDE

THE rain-shafts splintered on me
As despondently I strode ;
The twilight gloomed upon me
And bleared the blank high-road.
Each bush gave forth, when blown on
By gusts in shower and shower,
A sigh, as it were sown on
In handfuls by a sower.

A cheerful voice called, nigh me,
“ A merry Christmas, friend ! ”—
There rose a figure by me,
Walking with townward trend,
A sodden tramp's, who, breaking
Into thin song, bore straight Ahead, direction taking Toward the Casuals' gate.

RELUCTANT CONFESSION

“ WHAT did you do? Cannot you let me know? ”

“ Don’t ask! . . . ’Twas midnight, and I’d lost at cards.”

“ Ah. Was it crime—or seemed it to be so? ”

“ No—not till afterwards.”

“ But what, then, did you do? ”

“ Well—that was the beginning—months ago ;

You see, I had lost, and could not pay
but—so.

And there flashed from him strange and strong regards

That you only see when scruples smash to shards ;

And thus it happened—O it rained and blew !—

But I can’t tell. ’Twas all so lurid in hue !

And what was worst came after, when I knew

28 RELUCTANT CONFESSION

What first crossed not my mind,
And he has never divined ! ” . . .
“ But he must have, if he proposed it
you ? ”
“ I mean, that—I got rid of what resulted
In a way a woman told me I consulted :
’Tis that he does not know ;
Great God, it harrows me so !
I did not mean to. Every night—
In hell-dark dreams
I see an appealing figure in white—
That somehow seems
A newborn child in the clothes I set to make,
But left off, for my own depraved name’s sake ! ”

EXPECTATION AND EXPERIENCE

“ I HAD a holiday once,” said the woman—

Her name I did not know—

“ And I thought that where I’d like to go,
Of all the places for being jolly,

And getting rid of melancholy,

Would be to a good big fair :

And I went. And it rained in torrents, drenching

Every horse, and sheep, and yeoman,

And my shoulders, face and hair ;

And I found that I was the single woman

In the field—and looked quite odd there !

Everything was spirit-quenching :

I crept and stood in the lew of a wall

To think, and could not tell at all

What on earth made me plod there ! ”

ARISTODEMUS THE MESSENIAN

(DRAMATIC HENDECASYLLABICS)

SCENE : BEFORE THE STRONGHOLD
OF ITHOME, MESSEANIA, 735 B.C.

His daughter's lover discovered, in the disguise of a soothsayer ; to whom enters ARISTODEMUS.

ARISTODEMUS (apostrophically)

Straightway let it be done !

LOVER

Let what be done, chief ?

ARISTODEMUS

Who art thou that art speaking ? Some sage prophet ?—

She, my daughter's to perish on the altar !

LOVER

Thou called hero!—a myth thy vaunted
power,
If it fail to redeem thy best beloved.

ARISTODEMUS

Power is nought to the matter. What the Sibyl
Bids, must be!

LOVER

But I doubt such bidding thereto.

ARISTODEMUS

Nay. White lippings above the Delphic tripod
Mangle never their message! And they lip such.
Thriving, conquering shall Messene be forthwith—
Future worthy my gift of this intact one.
Yea, and who of the Aépŷtids renowned house
Weigh can greater with Zeus than she my offspring?
Shall these Spartiats sway to save me reavement?

What is fatherhood when they march in hearing ?

Hark ! E'en now they are here !

(Marching soldiers heard afar.)

LOVER (after a silence)

And mean you to warn her ?

ARISTODEMUS

Not till evening shades can cover pallor.

[Exit.

Lover stands motionless. Enter the daughter of ARISTODEMUS.

DAUGHTER

Ah ! Thou comest to me, Love, not as earlier !

Lover, as it were waking, approaches, unhoods his face, and embraces her.

Why not speak to me ?

LOVER

Sweetest, thou'rt a doomed one !

DAUGHTER

How ?

LOVER

Thy sacrifice by thy father waits thee—
Thee, as offering for the State's salvation.

DAUGHTER

Not the slaying of me ?

LOVER

Fail I to stay him—

(She droops in his arms)

Whereto bursts in a flame a means upon me !

DAUGHTER

How ? My father is mighty. Thou'rt so powerless.

LOVER

Thus and now it adumbrates. Haste I to him,
Vowing love for thee !

DAUGHTER

Which he'll value wryly—
Less than nought, as I know.

LOVER

Till comes my sequel ;
This, to wit. Thou art got with child by me. Ay,
List: the Sibylline utterance asks a virgin;
So th'rt saved !

DAUGHTER

But a maid's the thing I am, Love !
Gods ! With child I am not, but veriest virgin—
Who knows surer than thou ?

LOVER

I'll make him think so,
Though no man upon earth more knows its falseness,
Such will I.

DAUGHTER

But alas, thou canst not make him :
Me he knows to the core. He'll not believe thee.

LOVER

Then thou canst. He'll accept thy vouching, sure, Sweet,
And another intact one, equal serving,
Straightway find for the knife.

DAUGHTER

My Love, I must not !

LOVER

Not ? And yet there is pending for thee,
elsewise,
Dark destruction, and all thy burning being
Dungeoned in an eternal nescientness !

She shudders, but weepingly shows unwillingness.

Stay. I'll make the asseverance first.
Thou'lt clinch it ?

DAUGHTER

(with white cheeks, after a pause)

Be it so ! . . .

The Messenian army is heard going out to meet the Spartans. Lover hoods himself as ARISTODEMUS enters from the stronghold.

ARISTODEMUS

(looking strangely at his daughter)

Stay you yet at the gate ? The old man also ?

Hath indeed he disclosed the sore pronouncement ?

DAUGHTER (falteringly)

Sore pronouncement ? And what is, sire, its substance ?

Messenger enters.

MESSENGER

King Euphaes is just found slain in combat :
Thereby King is the Chief, Aristodemus, E'en ere falters the strife—still hard against us !

ARISTODEMUS

Ha ! And is it in balance yet !—The deed, then !

Daughter looks at her lover, who throws off his disguise ; and they go up to ARISTODEMUS together.

Who's this man ? And to what tends all this feigning ?

DAUGHTER

He—my lover—who thinks to be my husband—

O my father, thy pardon ! Know a secret !

ARISTODEMUS

Lover ? Secret ? And what ? But such is naught now :
Husband he nor another can be to thee,
Let him think as he may ! And though
I meant not Death to broach till the eve, let doom be dealt now.
Hark, the Spartan assays ! It straight behoves me,
Cost it what to my soul, to give deliverance
To my country the instant. Thou, my
daughter,
Foremost maiden of all the maidens round us—

DAUGHTER

O but save me, I pray, sire ! And to that end
There has now to be spoke a thing immediate,
And I fain would be speaker. But I cannot !
What he now will reveal, receive as vouched for !

(She rushes into the Castle.)

ARISTODEMUS (to lover)

What means this in her ? Reads she what's impending ?

LOVER

King, its meaning is much ! That she's with child. Yea,
By me ! Hence there is called for im-molation
One who's what she is not—a sure-sealed
virgin—
If you'd haste to deliver stressed Ithome, Bulking yet overhead as though un-weakened !

ARISTODEMUS sinks on to a projection of the rock, and covers his eyes.

ARISTODEMUS (brokenly)

Better had she been made the purposed victim
Than that this should have so befallen to save her !
Foul disaster of fatherhood and home-
pride ! . . .
Let this citadel fall ; the Spartan army
Trample over its dust, and enter in here !
She is worse than a martyr for the Stateweal,

I than one of the slain. And king to-morrow !

(He pauses)

'Tis not true !

He makes as if to fall upon her lover with his sword. Lover defends himself with his dagger. ARISTODEMUS turns to rush into the castle after his daughter.

I misdoubt it ! They speak falsely !

[Exit ARISTODEMUS.

Lover walks up and down in strained suspense. Interval. A groan is heard. Lover is about to rush out, but re-enter ARISTODEMUS sword in hand, now bloody.

ARISTODEMUS

I have proved me her honour, shown the falsehood

Ye twain both have declared me !

LOVER

That canst not do !

ARISTODEMUS

I say I have outshewn it ; proved her even Until death very virgin pure and spotless !

Enter Attendants.

ATTENDANTS (severally)

Horror, horror indeed ! He's ripped her up—yea,
With his sword ! He hath split her beau-teous body
To prove her maid !

ARISTODEMUS (to lover)

Now diest thou for thy lying, like as she died !

*He turns his sword on lover, but falls
from exhaustion. Lover seizes ARISTO-DEMUS' sword, and is about to run him through with it ; but he checks his hand, and turns the sword upon himself.*

(Lover dies.)

EVENING SHADOWS

THE shadows of my chimneys stretch afar
Across the plot, and on to the privet bower,
And even the shadows of their smokings show,
And nothing says just now that where they are
They will in future stretch at this same hour,
Though in my earthen cyst I shall not know.

And at this time the neighbouring Pagan mound,
Whose myths the Gospel news now supersede,
Upon the greensward also throws its shade,
And nothing says such shade will spread around
Even as to-day when men will no more heed
The Gospel news than when the mound was made.

THE THREE TALL MEN

THE FIRST TAPPING

“ WHAT’S that tapping at night:
tack, tack,
In some house in the street at the back ? ”

“ O, ’tis a man who, when he has leisure,
Is making himself a coffin to measure.
He’s so very tall that no carpenter
Will make it long enough, he’s in fear.
His father’s was shockingly short for his limb—
And it made a deep impression on him.”

THE SECOND TAPPING

“ That tapping has begun again,
Which ceased a year back, or near then ? ”

“ Yes, ’tis the man you heard before Making his coffin. The first scarce done
His brother died—his only one—
And, being of his own height, or more,

He used it for him ; for he was afraid
He'd not get a long enough one quick made.

He's making a second now, to fit
Himself when there shall be need for it.
Carpenters work so by rule of thumb
That they make mistakes when orders come."

THE THIRD TAPPING

" It's strange, but years back, when I was
here,

I used to notice a tapping near ;
A man was making his coffin at night,
And he made a second, if I am right ?
I have heard again the self-same tapping—
Yes, late last night—or was I napping ? "

" O no. It's the same man. He made one Which his brother had ; and a second was done—

For himself, as he thought. But lately his son,

As tall as he, died ; aye, and as trim,
And his sorrowful father bestowed it on him.

And now the man is making a third,
To be used for himself when he is interred."

" Many years later was brought to me
News that the man had died at sea."

THE LODGING-HOUSE FUCHSIAS

MRS. MASTERS'S fuchsias hung
Higher and broader, and brightly swung,
 Bell-like, more and more
Over the narrow garden-path,
Giving the passer a sprinkle-bath
 In the morning.

She put up with their pushful ways,
And made us tenderly lift their sprays,
 Going to her door :
But when her funeral had to pass
They cut back all the flowery mass
 In the morning.

THE WHALER'S WIFE

I NEVER pass that inn "The Ring of Bells"

Without recalling what its signpost tells
To recollection :

A tale such as all houses yield, maybe,
That ever have known of fealties, phantasy,
Hate, or affection.

He has come from a whaling cruise to settle down

As publican in his small native town,
Where his wife dwells.

It is a Sunday morning ; she has gone
To church with others. Service still being on,

He seeks "The Bells."

"Yes : she's quite thriving ; very much so, they say.

I don't believe in tales ; 'tis not my way !
I hold them stuff.

But—as you press me—certainly we know
He visits her once at least each week or so,
Fair weather or rough.

“ And, after all, he’s quite a gentleman,
And lonely wives must friend them where they can.

She’ll tell you all,
No doubt, when prayers are done and she comes home.

I’m glad to hear your early taste to roam Begins to pall.”

“ I’ll stroll out and await her,” then said he.
Anon the congregation passed, and she Passed with the rest,

Unconscious of the great surprise at hand
And bounding on, and smiling—fair and bland—

In her Sunday best.

Straight she was told. She fainted at the news,

But rallied, and was able to refuse
Help to her home.

There she sat waiting all day—with a look—

A look of joy, it seemed, if none mistook . . .
But he did not come.

Time flew : her husband kept him absent still,

And by slow slips the woman pined, until,
Grown thin, she died—

Of grief at loss of him, some would aver,
But how could that be? They anyway buried her

By her mother's side.

And by the grave stood, at the funeral,
A tall man, elderly and grave withal ;

Gossip grew grim :

He was the same one who had been seen before ;

He paid, in cash, all owing ; and no more
Was heard of him.

At the pulling down of her house, decayed and old,

Many years after, was the true tale told
By an ancient swain.

The tall man was the father of the wife.

He had beguiled her mother in maiden life,
And to cover her stain,

Induced to wive her one in his service bred,
Who brought her daughter up as his till wed.

—This the girl knew,

But hid it close, to save her mother's name,
Even from her seaman spouse, and ruined her fame

With him, though true.

THROWING A TREE

NEW FOREST

THE two executioners stalk along
over the knolls,
Bearing two axes with heavy heads
shining and wide,
And a long limp two-handled saw toothed for cutting great boles,
And so they approach the proud tree that bears the death-mark on its side.

Jackets doffed they swing axes and chop away just above ground,
And the chips fly about and lie white
on the moss and fallen leaves ;
Till a broad deep gash in the bark is
hewn all the way round,
And one of them tries to hook upward a rope, which at last he achieves.

The saw then begins, till the top of the tall giant shivers :
The shivers are seen to grow greater each cut than before :

They edge out the saw, tug the rope ;
but the tree only quivers,
And kneeling and sawing again, they step back to try pulling once more.

Then, lastly, the living mast sways,
further sways : with a shout Job and Ike rush aside. Reached the end of its long staying powers
The tree crashes downward : it shakes all its neighbours throughout,
And two hundred years' steady growth has been ended in less than two hours.

THE WAR-WIFE OF CATKNOLL

“ WHAT crowd is this in Catknoll Street,
Now I am just come home ?
What crowd is this in my old street,
That flings me such a glance ?
A stretcher—and corpse ? A sobering sight
To greet me, when my heart is light
With thoughts of coming cheer to-night
Now I am back from France.”

“ O ’tis a woman, soldier-man,
Who seem to be new come :
O ’tis a woman, soldier-man,
Found in the river here,
Whither she went and threw her in,
And now they are carrying her within :
She’s drowned herself for a sly sin
Against her husband dear.

“ ’A said to me, who knew her well,
‘ O why was I so weak ! ’

'A said to me, who knew her well,
 And have done all her life,
 With a downcast face she said to me,
 ' O why did I keep company
 Wi' them that practised gallantry,
 When vowed a faithful wife ! '

" ' O God, I'm driven mad ! ' she said,
 ' To hear he's coming back ;
 I'm fairly driven mad ! ' she said :
 ' He's been two years agoone,
 And now he'll find me in this state,
 And not forgive me. Had but fate
 Kept back his coming three months late,
 Nothing of it he'd known ! '

" We did not think she meant so much,
 And said : ' He may forgive.'
 O never we thought she meant so much
 As to go doing this.
 And now she must be crowned !—so fair !—
 Who drew men's eyes so everywhere !—
 And love-letters beyond compare
 For coaxing to a kiss.

" She kept her true a year or more
 Against the young men all ;
 Yes, kept her true a year or more,
 And they were most to blame.

52 WAR-WIFE OF CATKNOLL

There was Will Peach who plays the flute,
And Waywell with the dandy suit,
And Nobb, and Knight. . . . But she's been mute
As to the father's name."

NOTE: verse 5. — "She must be crowned." Old English for "there must be a coroner's inquest over her."

CONCERNING HIS OLD HOME

MOOD I

I WISH to see it never—
That dismal place
With cracks in its floor—
I would forget it ever !

MOOD II

To see it once, that sad
And memoried place—
Yes, just once more—
I should be faintly glad !

MOOD III

To see it often again—
That friendly place
With its green low door—
I'm willing anywhen !

MOOD IV

I'll haunt it night and day—
That loveable place,
With its flowers' rich store
That drives regret away !

HER SECOND HUSBAND HEARS HER STORY

“STILL, Dear, it is incredible to me
That here, alone,
You should have sewed him up until he
died,
And in this very bed. I do not see How you could do it, seeing what might betide.”

“Well, he came home one midnight, liquored deep—
Worse than I'd known—
And lay down heavily, and soundly slept :
Then, desperate driven, I thought of it,
to keep Him from me when he woke. Being an adept

“With needle and thimble, as he snored, click-click
An hour I'd sewn,

56 HER SECOND HUSBAND

Till, had he roused, he couldn't have moved from bed,
So tightly laced in sheet and quilt and tick
He lay. And in the morning he was dead.

“ Ere people came I drew the stitches out,
 And thus 'twas shown
To be a stroke.”—“ It's a strange tale ! ” said he.

“ And this same bed ? ”—“ Yes, here it came about.”

“ Well, it sounds strange—told here and now to me.

“ Did you intend his death by your tight lacing ? ”

“ O, that I cannot own.

I could not think of else that would avail
When he should wake up, and attempt embracing.”—

“ Well, it's a cool queer tale ! ”

YULETIDE IN A YOUNGER WORLD

WE believed in highdays then,
And could glimpse at night
On Christmas Eve
Imminent oncomings of radiant revel—
Doings of delight :—
Now we have no such sight.

We had eyes for phantoms then,
And at bridge or stile
On Christmas Eve
Clear beheld those countless ones who had crossed it
Cross again in file :—
Such has ceased longwhile !

We liked divination then,
And, as they homeward wound
On Christmas Eve,

We could read men's dreams within them
 spinning
Even as wheels spin round :—
Now we are blinker-bound.

We heard still small voices then,
And, in the dim serene
 Of Christmas Eve,
Caught the fartime tones of fire-filled prophets
Long on earth unseen. . . .
—Can such ever have been ?

AFTER THE DEATH OF A FRIEND

YOU died, and made but little of it !—
Why then should I, when called to doff it,
Drop, and renounce this worm - holed
raiment,
Shrink edgewise off from its grey claimant?
Rather say, when I am Time-outrun,
As you did : Take me, and have done,
Inexorable, insatiate one !

THE SON'S PORTRAIT

I WALKED the streets of a market town,
And came to a lumber-shop,
Which I had known ere I met the frown
Of fate and fortune,
And habit led me to stop.

In burrowing mid this chattel and that,
High, low, or edgewise thrown,
I lit upon something lying flat—
A fly-flecked portrait,
Framed. 'Twas my dead son's own.

“That photo? . . . A lady—I know not whence—
Sold it me, Ma'am, one day,
With more. You can have it for eighteenpence :
The picture's nothing ;
It's but for the frame you pay.”

THE SON'S PORTRAIT 61

He had given it her in their heyday shine,
When she wedded him, long her wooer :
And then he was sent to the front-trench-line,
And fell there fighting ;
And she took a new bridegroom to her.

I bought the gift she had held so light,
And buried it—as 'twere he.—
Well, well ! Such things are trifling, quite,
But when one's lonely
How cruel they can be !

LYING AWAKE

YOU, Morningtide Star, now are steady-eyed, over the east,

I know it as if I saw you ;

You, Beeches, engrave on the sky your thin twigs, even the least ;

Had I paper and pencil I'd draw you.

You, Meadow, are white with your counterpane cover of dew,

I see it as if I were there ;

You, Churchyard, are lightening faint
from the shade of the yew,

The names creeping out everywhere.

THE LADY IN THE FURS

“ I’M a lofty lovely woman,”
Says the lady in the furs,
In the glance she throws around her
On the poorer dames and sirs :
“ This robe, that cost three figures,
Yes, is mine,” her nod avers.

“ True, my money did not buy it,
But my husband’s, from the trade ;
And they, they only got it
From things feeble and afraid
By murdering them in ambush
With a cunning engine’s aid.

“ True, my hands, too, did not shape it
To the pretty cut you see,
But the hands of midnight workers
Who are strangers quite to me :
It was fitted, too, by dressers
Ranged around me toilsomely.

64 THE LADY IN THE FURS

“ But I am a lovely lady,
 Though sneerers say I shine
By robbing Nature’s children
 Of apparel not mine,
And that I am but a broom-stick,
 Like a scarecrow’s wooden spine.”

1925.

CHILDHOOD AMONG THE FERNS

I SAT one sprinkling day upon the lea,
Where tall-stemmed ferns spread out luxuriantly,
And nothing but those tall ferns sheltered
me.

The rain gained strength, and damped
each lopping frond,
Ran down their stalks beside me and beyond,
And shaped slow-creeping rivulets as I
conned,

With pride, my spray-roofed house. And though anon
Some drops pierced its green rafters, I sat on,
Making pretence I was not rained upon.

The sun then burst, and brought forth a sweet breath
From the limp ferns as they dried underneath :
I said : “ I could live on here thus till death ” ;

And queried in the green rays as I sate :
“ Why should I have to grow to man’s estate,
And this afar-noised World perambulate? ”

A COUNTENANCE

HER laugh was not in the middle of her face quite,
As a gay laugh springs,
It was plain she was anxious about some things
I could not trace quite.
Her curls were like fir-cones—piled up, brown—
Or rather like tight-tied sheaves :
It seemed they could never be taken down. . . .

And her lips were too full, some might say :
I did not think so. Anyway,
The shadow her lower one would cast
Was green in hue whenever she passed
Bright sun on midsummer leaves.
Alas, I knew not much of her,
And lost all sight and touch of her !

If otherwise, should I have minded
The shy laugh not in the middle of her
 " mouth quite,
And would my kisses have died of drouth
 quite
 As love became unblinded ?

1884.

A POET'S THOUGHT

IT sprang up out of him in the dark,
And took on the lightness of a lark :
It went from his chamber along the city
strand,
Lingered awhile, then leapt all over the land.

It came back maimed and mangled. And the poet
When he beheld his offspring did not know
it :
Yea, verily, since its birth Time's tongue had tossed to him
Such travesties that his old thought was lost to him.

SILENCES

THERE is the silence of a copse or croft
When the wind sinks dumb,
And of a belfry-loft
When the tenor after tolling stops its hum.

And there's the silence of a lonely pond
Where a man was drowned,
Nor nigh nor yond
A newt, frog, toad, to make the merest sound.

But the rapt silence of an empty house
Where oneself was born,
Dwelt, held carouse
With friends, is of all silences most forlorn !

Past are remembered songs and music-strains
Once audible there :
Roof, rafters, panes
Look absent-thoughted, tranced, or locked in prayer.

It seems no power on earth can waken it
Or rouse its rooms,
Or its past permit
The present to stir a torpor like a tomb's.

“ I WATCHED A BLACKBIRD ”

I WATCHED a blackbird on a budding sycamore
One Easter Day, when sap was stirring twigs to the core ;
I saw his tongue, and crocus-coloured bill
Parting and closing as he turned his trill ;
Then he flew down, seized on a stem of hay,
And upped to where his building scheme
was under way,
As if so sure a nest were never shaped on spray.

A NIGHTMARE, AND THE NEXT THING

ON this decline of Christmas Day
The empty street is fogged and blurred :

The house-fronts all seem backwise turned
As if the outer world were spurned :
Voices and songs within are heard,
Whence red rays gleam when fires are stirred,
Upon this nightmare Christmas Day.

The lamps, just lit, begin to outloom
Like dandelion-globes in the gloom ;
The stonework, shop-signs, doors, look bald ;

Curious crude details seem installed,
And show themselves in their degrees
As they were personalities Never discerned when the street was bustling
With vehicles, and farmers hustling.

Three clammy casuals wend their way
To the Union House. I hear one say :
“ Jimmy, this is a treat ! Hay-hay ! ”

Six laughing mouths, six rows of teeth,
Six radiant pairs of eyes, beneath
Six yellow hats, looking out at the back
Of a waggonette on its slowed-down track
Up the steep street to some gay dance,
Suddenly interrupt my glance.

They do not see a gray nightmare
Astride the day, or anywhere.

TO A TREE IN LONDON

(CLEMENT'S INN)

HERE you stay
Night and day,
Never, never going away !

Do you ache
When we take
Holiday for our health's sake ?

Wish for feet
When the heat
Scalds you in the brick-built street,

That you might
Climb the height
Where your ancestry saw light,

Find a brook
In some nook
There to purge your swarthy look ?

76 TO A TREE IN LONDON

No. You read
Trees to need
Smoke like earth whereon to feed. . . .

Have no sense
That far hence
Air is sweet in a blue immense,

Thus, black, blind,
You have opined
Nothing of your brightest kind ;

Never seen
Miles of green,
Smelt the landscape's sweet serene.

THE FELLED ELM AND SHE

WHEN you put on that inmost ring
She, like you, was a little thing :
When your circles reached their fourth,
Scarce she knew life's south from north :
When your year-zones counted twenty
She had fond admirers plenty :
When you'd grown your twenty-second
She and I were lovers reckoned :
When you numbered twenty-three
She went everywhere with me :
When you, at your fortieth line,
Showed decay, she seemed to pine :
When you were quite hollow within
She was felled—mere bone and skin :
You too, lacking strength to grow
Further trunk-rings, were laid low,
Matching her ; both unaware
That your lives formed such a pair.

HE DID NOT KNOW ME

(Woman's Sorrow Song)

HE said : " I do not know you ;
You are not she who came
And made my heart grow tame ? "
I laughed : " The same ! "

Still said he : " I don't know you."
" But I am your Love ! " laughed I :
" Yours—faithful ever—till I die,
And pulseless lie ! "

Yet he said : " I don't know you."
Freakful, I went away,
And met pale Time, with " Pray,
What means his Nay ? "

Said Time : " He does not know you
In your mask of Comedy."
" But," said I, " that I have chosen to be:
Tragedy he."

“ True ; hence he did not know you.”

“ But him I could recognize ? ”

“ Yea. Tragedy is true guise, Comedy lies.”

SO VARIOUS

YOU may have met a man—quite young—

A brisk-eyed youth, and highly strung :

One whose desires
And inner fires
Moved him as wires.

And you may have met one stiff and old,
If not in years ; of manner cold ;

Who seemed as stone,
And never had known
Of mirth or moan.

And there may have crossed your path a
lover,

In whose clear depths you could discover
A staunch, robust,
And tender trust,
Through storm and gust.

And you may have also known one fickle,
Whose fancies changed as the silver sickle
 Of yonder moon,
 Which shapes so soon
 To demilune !

You entertained a person once
Whom you internally deemed a dunce :—
 As he sat in view
 Just facing you
 You saw him through.

You came to know a learned seer
Of whom you read the surface mere :
 Your soul quite sank ;
 Brain of such rank
 Dubbed yours a blank.

Anon you quizzed a man of sadness,
Who never could have known true gladness
 Just for a whim
 You pitied him
 In his sore trim.

You journeyed with a man so glad
You never could conceive him sad :
 He proved to be Indubitably
 Good company.

You lit on an unadventurous slow man,
Who, said you, need be feared by no man ;
 That his slack deeds
 And sloth must needs
 Produce but weeds.

A man of enterprise, shrewd and swift,
Who never suffered affairs to drift,
 You eyed for a time
 Just in his prime,
 And judged he might climb.

You smoked beside one who forgot
All that you said, or grasped it not.
 Quite a poor thing,
 Not worth a sting.
 By satirizing !

Next year you nearly lost for ever
Goodwill from one who forgot slights never ;
 And, with unease,
 Felt you must seize
 Occasion to please . . .

Now. . . . All these specimens of man,
So various in their pith and plan,
 Curious to say
 Were one man. Yea,
 I was all they.

A SELF-GLAMOURER

MY little happiness,
How much I have made of it!—
As if I had been not less Than a queen, to be straight obeyed of it.
“ Life, be fairer far,”
I said, “ Than you are.”

So I counted my springtime-day's Dream of futurity
Enringed with golden rays
To be quite a summer surety ;
And my trustful daring undoubt
Brought it about !

Events all human-wrought
Had look of divinity,
And what I foreframed in thought
Grew substantced, by force of affinity :
Visions to verities came,
Seen as the same.

My years in trusting spent
 Make to shape towardly,
And fate and accident
Behave not perversely or frowardly.
 Shall, then, Life's winter snow
 To me be so ?

THE DEAD BASTARD

MANY and many a time I thought,
“Would my child were in its grave !”

Such the trouble and shame it brought.

Now 'tis there. And now I'd brave
Opinion's worst, in word or act,
To have that child alive ; yes, slave

To dress and flaunt it to attract ;
Show it the gossips brazenly,
And let as nothing be the fact
That never its father married me.

THE CLASPED SKELETONS

SURMISED DATE 1800 B.C.

(In an Ancient British barrow near the writer's house)

O WHY did we uncover to view
So closely clasped a pair ?
Your chalky bedclothes over you,
This long time here !

Ere Paris lay with Helena—
The poets' dearest dear—
Ere David bedded Bathsheba
You two were bedded here.

Aye, even before the beauteous Jael
Bade Sisera doff his gear
And lie in her tent ; then drove the nail,
You two lay here.

Wicked Aholah, in her youth,
Colled loves from far and near
Until they slew her without ruth ;
But you had long colled here.

THE CLASPED SKELETONS 87

Aspasia lay with Pericles,
And Philip's son found cheer
At eves in lying on Thais' knees
While you lay here.

Cleopatra with Antony,
Resigned to dalliance sheer,
Lay, fatuous he, insatiate she,
Long after you'd lain here.

Pilate by Procula his wife
Lay tossing at her tear
Of pleading for an innocent life ;
You tossed not here.

Ages before Monk Abélard
Gained tender Héloise' ear,
And loved and lay with her till scarred,
Had you lain loving here.

So long, beyond chronology,
Lovers in death as 'twere,
So long in placid dignity
Have you lain here !

Yet what is length of time ? But dream !
Once breathed this atmosphere
Those fossils near you, met the gleam
Of day as you did here ;

88 THE CLASPED SKELETONS

But so far earlier theirs beside
Your life-span and career,
That they might style of yestertide
Your coming here !

IN THE MARQUEE

IT was near last century's ending,
And, though not much to rate
In a world of getting and spending,
To her it was great.

The scene was a London suburb
On a night of summer weather,
And the villas had back gardens
Running together.

Her neighbours behind were dancing
Under a marquee ;
Two violoncellos played there,
And violins three.

She had not been invited,
Although her lover was ;
She lay beside her husband,
Perplexed at the cause.

Sweet after sweet quadrille rang :
Absence made her weep ;

The tears dried on her eyelids
As she fell asleep.

She dreamt she was whirling with him
In this dance upon the green
To which she was not invited
Though her lover had been.

All night she danced as he clasped her—
That is, in the happy dream
The music kept her dreaming
Till the first daybeam.

“ O damn those noisy fiddles ! ”
Her husband said as he turned :
“ Close to a neighbour’s bedroom :
I’d like them burned ! ”

At intervals thus all night-long
Her husband swore. But she Slept on, and danced in the loved arms,
Under the marquee.

Next day she found that her lover,
Though asked, had gone elsewhere,
And that she had possessed him in absence
More than if there.

AFTER THE BURIAL

THE family had buried him,
Their bread-bringer, their best :
They had returned to the house, whose hush a dim
Vague vacancy expressed.

There sat his sons, mute, rigid-faced,
His daughters, strained, red-eyed,
His wife, whose wan, worn features, vigil-traced,
Bent over him when he died.

At once a peal bursts from the bells
Of a large tall tower hard by :
Along the street the jocund clangour
swells,
And upward to the sky.

Probably it was a wedding-peal,
Or possibly for a birth,
Or townsman knighted for political zeal,
This resonant mark of mirth.

The mourners, heavy-browed, sat on Motionless. Well they heard,
They could not help it ; nevertheless thereon
Spoke not a single word,

Nor window did they close, to numb
The bells' insistent calls
Of joy ; but suffered the harassing din to come
And penetrate their souls.

THE MONGREL

I N Havenpool Harbour the ebb was strong,
And a man with a dog drew near and hung,
And taxpaying day was coming along,
So the mongrel had to be drowned.
The man threw a stick from the paved wharf-side
Into the midst of the ebbing tide,
And the dog jumped after with ardent pride
To bring the stick aground.

But no : the steady suck of the flood
To seaward needed, to be withstood,
More than the strength of mongrelhood
To fight its treacherous trend.
So, swimming for life with desperate will,
The struggler with all his natant skill
Kept buoyant in front of his master, still
There standing to wait the end.

The loving eyes of the dog inclined
To the man he held as a god enshrined,
With no suspicion in his mind

That this had all been meant.

Till the effort not to drift from shore
Of his little legs grew slower and slower,
And, the tide still outing with brookless
power,
Outward the dog, too, went.

Just ere his sinking what does one see
Break on the face of that devotee ?

A wakening to the treachery

He had loved with love so blind ?

The faith that had shone in that mongrel's eye

That his owner would save him by and by Turned to much like a curse as he sank to die,

And a loathing of mankind.

CONCERNING AGNES

I AM stopped from hoping what I have hoped before—

Yes, many a time !—

To dance with that fair woman yet once more

As in the prime

Of August, when the wide-faced moon looked through

The boughs at the faery lamps of the Larmer Avenue.

I could not, though I should wish, have over again

That old romance,

And sit apart in the shade as we sat then

After the dance

The while I held her hand, and, to the booms

Of contrabassos, feet still pulsed from the distant rooms.

I could not. And you do not ask me
why.

Hence you infer
That what may chance to the fairest under the sky

Has chanced to her.

Yes. She lies white, straight, features marble-keen,
Unapproachable, mute, in a nook I have never seen.

There she may rest like some vague goddess, shaped

As out of snow ;

Say Aphrodite sleeping ; or bedraped

Like Kalupso ;

Or Amphitrite stretched on the Mid-sea swell,

Or one of the Nine grown stiff from thought. I cannot tell !

HENLEY REGATTA

SHE looks from the window : still it pours down direly,
And the avenue drips. She cannot go,
 she fears ;
And the Regatta will be spoilt entirely ;
 And she sheds half-crazed tears.

Regatta Day and rain come on together
Again, years after. Gutters trickle loud ;
But Nancy cares not. She knows nought of weather,
 Or of the Henley crowd :

She's a Regatta quite her own. Inanely
She laughs in the asylum as she floats
Within a water-tub, which she calls
 " Henley,"
 Her little paper boats.

AN EVENING IN GALILEE

SHE looks far west towards Carmel,
Shading her eyes with her hand,
And she then looks east to the Jordan, and the smooth 'Tiberias' strand.

"Is my son mad?" she asks; and never an answer has she,

Save from herself, aghast at the possibility.

"He professes as his firm faiths things far too grotesque to be true,

And his vesture is odd—too careless for one of his fair young hue! . . .

"He lays down doctrines as if he were old—aye, fifty at least:

In the Temple he terrified me, opposing the very High-Priest!

Why did he say to me, 'Woman, what have I to do with thee?'

O it cuts to the heart that a child of mine
thus spoke to me!

AN EVENING IN GALILEE 99

And he said, too, ' Who is my mother ? '—
when he knows so very well.

He might have said, ' Who is my father ? '—
—and I'd found it hard to tell !

That no one knows but Joseph and—one other, nor ever will ;

One who'll not see me again. . . . How it chanced !—I dreaming no ill ! . . .

" Would he'd not mix with the lowest folk
—like those fishermen—

The while so capable, culling new knowledge, beyond our ken ! . . .

That woman of no good character, ever following him,

Adores him if I mistake not : his wish of her is but a whim

Of his madness, it may be, outmarking his lack of coherency ;

After his ' Keep the Commandments ! ' to smile upon such as she !

It is just what all those do who are wandering in their wit.

I don't know—dare not say—what harm
may grow from it.

O a mad son is a terrible thing ; it even may lead

To arrest, and death ! . . . And how he can preach, expound, and read !

100 AN EVENING IN GALILEE

“ Here comes my husband. Shall I unveil him this tragedy-brink ?

No. He has nightmares enough. I’ll pray, and think, and think.” . . .

She remembers she’s never put on any pot for his evening meal,

And pondering a plea looks vaguely to south of her—towards Jezreel.

THE BROTHER

O KNOW you what I have done
To avenge our sister ? She,
I thought, was wantoned with
By a man of levity :

And I lay in wait all day,
All day did I wait for him,
And dogged him to Bollard Head
When twilight dwindled dim,

And hurled him over the edge
And heard him fall below :
O would I were lying with him,
For the truth I did not know !

“ O where’s my husband ? ” she asked,
As evening wore away :

“ Best you had one, forsooth,
But never had you ! ” I say.

“ Yes, but I have ! ” says she,
“ My Love made it up with me,

And we churched it yesterday
And mean to live happily."

And now I go in haste
To the Head, before she's aware,
To join him in death for the wrong
I've done them both out there !

WE FIELD-WOMEN

HOW it rained
When we worked at Flint-comb-Ash,
And could not stand upon the hill
Trimming swedes for the slicing-mill.
The wet washed through us—plash, plash,
plash :
How it rained !

How it snowed
When we crossed from Flintcomb-Ash
To the Great Barn for drawing reed,
Since we could nowise chop a swede.—
Flakes in each doorway and casementsash :
How it snowed !

How it shone
When we went from Flintcomb-Ash
To start at dairywork once more
In the laughing meads, with cows three-score,
And pails, and songs, and love—too rash :
How it shone !

A PRACTICAL WOMAN

“ O WHO’LL get me a healthy child :—
I should prefer a son—
Seven have I had in thirteen years,
Sickly every one !

“ Three mope about as feeble shapes ;
Weak ; white ; they’ll be no good.
One came deformed ; an idiot next ;
And two are crass as wood.

“ I purpose one not only sound
In flesh, but bright in mind :
And duly for producing him
A means I’ve now to find.”

She went away. She disappeared,
Years, years. Then back she came :
In her hand was a blooming boy
Mentally and in frame.

“ I found a father at last who’d suit
The purpose in my head,
And used him till he’d done his job,”
Was all thereon she said.

SQUIRE HOOPER

HOOPER was ninety. One September dawn

He sent a messenger
For his physician, who asked thereupon
What ailed the sufferer
Which he might circumvent, and promptly bid begone.

“ Doctor, I summoned you,” the squire replied—

“ Pooh-pooh me though you may—
To ask what’s happened to me—burst inside,

It seems—not much, I’d say—
But awkward with a house-full here for a shoot to-day.”

And he described the symptoms. With bent head

The listener looked grave.

“ H’m. . . . You’re a dead man in six hours,” he said.—

“ I speak out, since you are brave—
And best ’tis you should know, that last things may be sped.”

“ Right,” said the squire. “ And now comes—what to do ?

One thing : on no account
Must I now spoil the sport I’ve asked them to—

My guests are paramount—
They must scour scrub and stubble ; and big bags bring as due.”

He downed to breakfast, and bespoke his guests :—

“ I find I have to go
An unexpected journey, and it rests
With you, my friends, to show
The shoot can go off gaily, whether I’m there or no.”

Thus blandly spoke he ; and to the fields they went,

And Hooper up the stair.

They had a glorious day ; and stiff and spent

Returned as dusk drew near.—

“ Gentlemen,” said the doctor, “ he’s not back as meant,

To his deep regret ! ”—So they took leave, each guest

Observing : “ I dare say
Business detains him in the town : ’tis best

We should no longer stay
Just now. We’ll come again anon ” ;
and they went their way.

Meeting two men in the obscurity
Shouldering a box a thin
Cloth-covering wrapt, one sportsman
cried : “ Damn me,
I thought them carrying in,
At first, a coffin ; till I knew it could not be.”

“ A GENTLEMAN’S SECOND-HAND SUIT ”

HERE it is hanging in the sun
By the pawn-shop door,
A dress-suit—all its revels done
Of heretofore.
Long drilled to the waltzers’ swing and sway,
As its tokens show :
What it has seen, what it could say
If it did but know !

The sleeve bears still a print of powder
Rubbed from her arms
When she warmed up as the notes swelled louder
And livened her charms—
Or rather theirs, for beauties many Leant there, no doubt,
Leaving these tell-tale traces when he
Spun them about.

“ A SECOND-HAND SUIT ” 109

Its cut seems rather in bygone style
 On looking close,
So it mayn't have bent it for some while
 To the dancing pose :
Anyhow, often within its clasp
 Fair partners hung,
Assenting to the wearer's grasp
 With soft sweet tongue.

Where is, alas, the gentleman
 Who wore this suit ?
And where are his ladies ? Tell none can :
 Gossip is mute.
Some of them may forget him quite
 Who smudged his sleeve,
Some think of a wild and whirling night
 With him, and grieve.

“WE SAY WE SHALL NOT MEET ”

WE say we shall not meet
Again beneath this sky,
And turn with leaden feet,
Murmuring “ Good-bye ! ”

But laugh at how we rued
Our former time’s adieu
When those who went for good
Are met anew.

We talk in lightest vein
On trifles talked before,
And part to meet again,
But meet no more.

SEEING THE MOON RISE

WE used to go to Froom-hill Barrow
To see the round moon rise
Into the heath-rimmed skies,
Trudging thither by plough and harrow
Up the pathway, steep and narrow,
Singing a song.
Now we do not go there. Why?
Zest burns not so high !

Latterly we've only coned her
With a passing glance
From window or door by chance,
Hoping to go again, high yonder,
As we used, and gaze, and ponder,
Singing a song.
Thitherward we do not go :
Feet once quick are slow !

August 1927.

SONG TO AURORE

WE'LL not begin again to love,
It only leads to pain ;
The fire we now are master of
Has seared us not in vain.
Any new step of yours I'm fain
To hear of from afar,
And even in such may find a gain
While lodged not where you are.

No : that must not be done anew
Which has been done before ;
I scarce could bear to seek, or view,
Or clasp you any more !
Life is a labour, death is sore,
And lonely living wrings ;
But go your courses, sweet Aurore,
Kisses are caresome things !

HE NEVER EXPECTED MUCH

[or]

A CONSIDERATION

[A reflection] ON MY EIGHTY-SIXTH BIRTHDAY

WELL, World, you have kept faith
with me,
Kept faith with me ;
Upon the whole you have proved to be Much as you said you were.
Since as a child I used to lie
Upon the leaze and watch the sky,
Never, I own, expected I
That life would all be fair.

'Twas then you said, and since have said,
Times since have said,
In that mysterious voice you shed
From clouds and hills around :

114 HE NEVER EXPECTED MUCH

“ Many have loved me desperately,
Many with smooth serenity,
While some have shown contempt of me
Till they dropped underground.

“ I do not promise overmuch,
Child ; overmuch ;
Just neutral-tinted haps and such,”
You said to minds like mine.
Wise warning for your credit's sake !
Which I for one failed not to take,
And hence could stem such strain and ache
As each year might assign.

STANDING BY THE MANTELPIECE

(H. M. M., 1873)

THIS candle-wax is shaping to a shroud
To-night. (They call it that, as you may know)—
By touching it the claimant is avowed,
And hence I press it with my finger—so.

To-night. To me twice night, that should have been
The radiance of the midmost tick of noon,
And close around me wintertime is seen
That might have shone the veriest day of June!

But since all's lost, and nothing really lies
Above but shade, and shadier shade below,
Let me make clear, before one of us dies,
My mind to yours, just now embittered so.

Since you agreed, unurged and full-advised,
And let warmth grow without discouragement,
Why do you bear you now as if surprised,
When what has come was clearly consequent?

Since you have spoken, and finality
Closes around, and my last movements loom,
I say no more : the rest must wait till we
Are face to face again, yonside the tomb.

And let the candle-wax thus mould a shape
Whose meaning now, if hid before, you
know,
And how by touch one present claims its
drape,
And that it's I who press my finger—so.

BOYS THEN AND NOW

“ MORE than one cuckoo ? ”
And the little boy
Seemed to lose something
Of his spring joy.

When he'd grown up
He told his son
He'd used to think
There was only one,

Who came each year
With the trees' new trim
On purpose to please
England and him :

And his son—old already
In life and its ways—
Said yawning : “ How foolish
Boys were in those days ! ”

THAT KISS IN THE DARK

RECALL it you?—
Say you do!—

When you went out into the night,
In an impatience that would not wait,
From that lone house in the woodland spot,
And when I, thinking you had gone
For ever and ever from my sight,
Came after, printing a kiss upon
 Black air
 In my despair,
And my two lips lit on your cheek
As you leant silent against a gate,
Making my woman's face flush hot
At what I had done in the dark, unware
You lingered for me but would not speak :
Yes, kissed you, thinking you were not there !

Recall it you?—
Say you do !

A NECESSITARIAN'S EPITAPH

A WORLD I did not wish to enter Took me and poised me on my centre,
Made me grimace, and foot, and prance,
As cats on hot bricks have to dance
Strange jigs to keep them from the floor,
Till they sink down and feel no more.

BURNING THE HOLLY

O YOU are sad on Twelfth Night,
I notice : sad on Twelfth Night ;
You are as sad on Twelfth Night
As any that I know.

“ Yes : I am sad on that night,
Doubtless I’m sad on that night :
Yes ; I am sad on that night,
For we all loved her so ! ”

Why are you sad on Twelfth Night,
Especially on Twelfth Night ?
Why are you sad on Twelfth Night
When wit and laughter flow ?

—“ She’d been a famous dancer,
Much lured of men ; a dancer.
She’d been a famous dancer,
Facile in heel and toe. . . .

“ And we were burning the holly
On Twelfth Night ; the holly,
As people do : the holly,
Ivy, and mistletoe.

“ And while it popped and crackled,
(She being our lodger), crackled ;
And while it popped and crackled,
Her face caught by the glow,

“ In he walked and said to her,
In a slow voice he said to her ;
Yes, walking in he said to her,
‘ We sail before cock-crow.’

“ ‘ Why did you not come on to me,
As promised ? Yes, come on to me ?
Why did you not come on to me,
Since you had sworn to go ? ’

“ His eyes were deep and flashing,
As flashed the holm-flames : flashing ;
His eyes were deep, and flashing
In their quick, keen upthrow.

“ As if she had been ready,
Had furtively been ready ;
As if she had been ready
For his insistence—lo !—

“ She clasped his arm and went with him
 As his entirely : went with him.
 She clasped his arm and went with him
 Into the sprinkling snow.

“ We saw the prickly leaves waste
 To ashes : saw the leaves waste ;
 The burnt-up prickly leaves waste. . . .
 The pair had gone also.

—“ On Twelfth Night, two years after—
 Yes, Twelfth Night, two years after ;
 On Twelfth Night, two years after,
 We sat—our spirits low—

“ Musing, when back the door swung
 Without a knock. The door swung ;
 Thought flew to her. The door swung,
 And in she came, pale, slow ;

“ Against her breast a child clasped ;
 Close to her breast a child clasped ;
 She stood there with the child clasped,
 Swaying it to and fro.

“ Her look alone the tale told ;
 Quite wordless was the tale told ;
 Her careworn eyes the tale told
 As larger they seemed to grow. . . .

“ One day next spring she disappeared,
The second time she disappeared.
And that time, when she'd disappeared
Came back no more. Ah, no !

“ But we still burn the holly
On Twelfth Night ; burn the holly
As people do : the holly,
Ivy, and mistletoe.”

SUSPENSE

A CLAMMINESS hangs over all like
a clout,
The fields are a water-colour washed out,
The sky at its rim leaves a chink of light,
Like the lid of a pot that will not close tight.

She is away by the groaning sea,
Strained at the heart, and waiting for me :
Between us our foe from a hid retreat
Is watching, to wither us if we meet. . . .

But it matters little, however we fare—
Whether we meet, or I get not there ;
The sky will look the same thereupon,
And the wind and the sea go groaning on

THE SECOND VISIT

CLACK, clack, clack, went the mill-wheel as I came,
And she was on the bridge with the thin hand-rail,
And the miller at the door, and the ducks at mill-tail ;
I come again years after, and all there seems the same.

And so indeed it is : the apple-tree'd old house,
And the deep mill pond, and the wet wheel clacking,
And a woman on the bridge, and white ducks quacking,
And the miller at the door, powdered pale from boots to brows.

But it's not the same miller whom long ago I knew,
Nor are they the same apples, nor the same drops that dash

Over the wet wheel, nor the ducks below that splash,
Nor the woman who to fond complaints replied,
“ You know I do ! ”

OUR OLD FRIEND DUALISM

ALL hail to him, the Protean ! A tough old chap is he :
Spinoza and the Monists cannot make him cease to be.
We pound him with our " Truth, Sir,
please ! " and quite appear to still him :
He laughs ; holds Bergson up, and James ;
and swears we cannot kill him.
We argue them pragmatic cheats. " Aye,"
says he. " They're deceiving :
But I must live ; for flamens plead I am all that's worth believing ! "

1920.

FAITHFUL WILSON

“I SAY she’s handsome, by all laws
Of beauty, if wife ever was ! ”
Wilson insists thus, though each day
The years fret Fanny towards decay.
“ She was once beauteous as a jewel,” Hint friends ; “ but Time, of course, is cruel.”
Still Wilson does not quite feel how,
Once fair, she can be different now.

Partly from Strato of Sardis.

GALLANT'S SONG

WHEN the maiden leaves off teasing,
Then the man may leave off pleasing:
 Yea, 'tis sign,
 Wet or fine,
She will love him without ceasing
With a love there's no appeasing.
 Is it so?
 Ha-ha. Ho!

Nov. 1868.

From an old notebook.

A PHILOSOPHICAL FANTASY

“Milton . . . made God argue.”—WALTER BAGEHOT.

“WELL, if thou wilt, then, ask me ;
To answer will not task me :
I’ve a response, I doubt not,
And quite agree to flout not
Thy question, if of reason,
Albeit not quite in season :
A universe to marshal,
What god can give but partial
Eye to frail Earth—life-shotten
Ere long, extinct, forgotten !—
But seeing indications
That thou read’st my limitations,
And since my lack of forethought
Aggrieves thy more and more thought,
I’ll hearken to thy pleading :
Some lore may lie in heeding
Thy irregular proceeding.”

“ ’Tis this unfulfilled intention,
O Causer, I would mention :—
Will you, in condescension

A PHILOSOPHICAL FANTASY 131

This evening, ere we've parted,
Say why you felt fainthearted,
And let your aim be thwarted,
Its glory be diminished,
Its concept stand unfinished?—
Such I ask you, Sir or Madam,
(I know no more than Adam,
Even vaguely, what your sex is,—
Though feminine I had thought you
Till seers as 'Sire' besought you;—
And this my ignorance vexes
Some people not a little,
And, though not me one tittle,
It makes me sometimes choose me
Call you 'It,' if you'll excuse me? ")

" Call me 'It' with a good conscience,
And be sure it is all nonsense
That I mind a fault of manner
In a pigmy towards his planner!
Be I, be not I, sexless,
I am in nature vexless.
—How vain must clay-carved man be
To deem such folly can be
As that freaks of my own framing
Can set my visage flaming—
Start me volleying interjections
Against my own confections,
As the Jews and others limned me,
And in fear and trembling hymned me!

Call me 'but dream-projected,'
 I shall not be affected ;
 Call me 'blind force persisting,'
 I shall remain unlisting ;
 (A few have done it lately,
 And, maybe, err not greatly.) —Another such a vanity
 In witless weak humanity
 Is thinking that of those all
 Through space at my disposal,
Man's shape must needs resemble
 Mine, that makes zodiacs tremble !

" Continuing where we started :—
 As for my aims being thwarted,
 Wherefore I feel fainthearted,
 Aimless am I, revealing
 No heart-scope for faint feeling.
 —But thy mistake I'll pardon,
 And, as Adam's mentioned to me,
 (Though in timeless truth there never Was a man like him whatever,)
 I'll meet thee in thy garden,
 As I did not him, beshrew me !
 In the sun of so-called daytime—
 Say, just about the Maytime
 Of my next, or next, Creation ?
 (I love procrastination,
 To use the words in thy sense,
 Which have no hold on my sense)

A PHILOSOPHICAL FANTASY 133

Or at any future stray-time.--
One of thy representatives
In some later incarnation
I mean, of course, well knowing
Thy present conformation
But a unit of my tentatives,
Whereof such heaps lie blowing
As dust, where thou art going ;
Yea, passed to where suns glow not,
Begrrieved of those that go not,
(Though what grief is, I know not.)

“ Perhaps I may inform thee,
In case I should alarm thee,
That no dramatic stories
Like ancient ones whose core is
A mass of superstition
And monkish imposition
Will mark my explanation
Of the world's sore situation
(As thou tell'st), with woes that shatter ;
Though from former aions to latter
To me 'tis malleable matter
For treatment scientific
More than sensitive and specific—
Stuff without moral features,
Which I've no sense of ever,
Or of ethical endeavour,
Or of justice to Earth's creatures,
Or how Right from Wrong to sever :

Let these be as men learn such ;
 For me, I don't discern such,
 And—real enough I daresay—
 I know them but by hearsay
 As something Time hath rendered
 Out of substance I engendered,
 Time, too, being a condition
 Beyond my recognition.
 —I would add that, while unknowing
 Of this justice earthward owing,
 Nor explanation offering
 Of what is meant by suffering,
 Thereof I'm not a spurner,
 Or averse to be a learner.

“ To return from wordy wandering
 To the question we are pondering ;
 Though, viewing the world in my mode,
 I fail to see it in thy mode
 As ‘ unfulfilled intention,’
 Which is past my comprehension
 Being unconscious in my doings
 So largely, (whence thy rueings) ;—
 Aye, to human tribes nor kindness
 Nor love I've given, but mindlessness,
 Which state, though far from ending,
 May nevertheless be mending.

“ However, I'll advise him—
 Him thy scion, who will walk here

A PHILOSOPHICAL FANTASY 135

When Death hath dumb'd thy talk here—
In phrase that may surprise him,
What thing it was befel me,
(A thing that my confessing
Lack of forethought helps thy guessing),
And acted to compel me
By that purposeless propension
Which is mine, and not intention,
Along lines of least resistance,
Or, in brief, unsensed persistence,
That saddens thy existence
To think my so-called scheming
Not that of my first dreaming.”

1920 and 1926.

A QUESTION OF MARRIAGE

“ I YIELD you my whole heart, Countess,” said he ;

“ Come, Dear, and be queen of my studio.”

“ No, sculptor. You’re merely my friend,” said she :

“ We dine our artists ; but marry them—no.”

“ Be it thus,” he replied. And his love, so strong,

He subdued as a stoic should. Anon

He wived some damsel who’d loved him
long,

Of lineage noteless ; and chiselled on.

And a score years passed. As a mastermind

The world made much of his marching fame,

And his wife’s little charms, with his own entwined,

Won day after day increased acclaim.

A QUESTION OF MARRIAGE 137

The countess-widow had closed with a mate

In rank and wealth of her own degree,
And they moved among the obscurely great

Of an order that had no novelty.

And oldening—neither with blame nor praise—

Their stately lives begot no stir,
And she saw that when death should efface
her days

All men would abandon thought of her ;

And said to herself full gloomily :

“ Far better for me had it been to shine
The wench of a genius such as he Than rust as the wife of a spouse like mine ! ”

THE LETTER'S TRIUMPH

(A FANCY)

YES : I perceive it's to your Love
You are bent on sending me.
That this is so
Your words and phrases prove !

And now I am folded, and start to go,
Where you, my writer, have no leave to
come :
My entry none will know !

And I shall catch her eye, and dumb
She'll keep, should my unnoised arrival be Hoped for, or troublesome.

My face she'll notice readily :
And, whether she care to meet you, or care not,
She will perforce meet me ;

THE LETTER'S TRIUMPH 139

Take me to closet or garden-plot
And, blushing or pouting, bend her eyes quite near,
Moved much, or never a jot.

And while you wait in hope and fear,
Far from her cheeks and lips, snug I shall stay
In close communion there,

And hear her heart-beats, things she may say,
As near her naked fingers, sleeve, or glove
I lie—ha-ha !—all day.

A FORGOTTEN MINIATURE

THERE you are in the dark,
 Deep in a box
Nobody ever unlocks,
Or even turns to mark ;
 —Out of mind stark.

Yet there you have not been worsed
 Like your sitter
By Time, the Fair's hard-hitter ;
Your beauties, undispersed,
 Glow as at first.

Shut in your case for years,
 Never an eye
Of the many passing nigh,
Fixed on their own affairs,
 Thinks what it nears '

—While you have lain in gloom,
 A form forgot,
Your reign remembered not,
Much life has come to bloom
 Within this room.

A FORGOTTEN MINIATURE 141

Yea, in Time's cyclic sweep
Unrest has ranged :
Women and men have changed :
Some you knew slumber deep ;
Some wait for sleep.

WHISPERED AT THE CHURCH- OPENING

I N the bran-new pulpit the bishop stands,
And gives out his text, as his gaze expands
To the people, the aisles, the roof's new frame,
And the arches, and ashlar with coloured bands.

“ Why—he's the man,” says one, “ who came
To preach in my boyhood—a fashion
then—
In a series of sermons to working-men
On week-day evenings, a novelty
Which brought better folk to hear and see.
They preached each one each week, by request :
Some were eloquent speakers, among the best
Of the lot being this, as all confessed.”

“ I remember now. And reflection brings Back one in especial, sincerest of all ;
Whose words, though unpicked, gave the essence of things ;—
And where is he now, whom I well recall ? ”

“ Oh, he'd no touches of tactic skill :
His mind ran on charity and good will :
He's but as he was, a vicar still.”

IN WEATHERBURY STOCKS

(1850)

“ I SIT here in these stocks,
And Saint-Mary’s moans eleven ;
The sky is dark and cold :
I would I were in heaven !

“ What footsteps do I hear ?
Ah, you do not forget,
My Sophy ! O, my dear,
We may be happy yet !

“ But—. Mother, is’t your voice ?
You who have come to me ?—
It did not cross my thought :
I was thinking it was she.”

“ She ! Foolish simple son !
She says : ‘ I’ve finished quite
With him or any one
Put in the stocks to-night.’

“ She’s gone to Blooms-End dance,
And will not come back yet :
Her new man sees his chance,
And is teaching her to forget.

“ Jim, think no other woman
To such a fellow is true
But the mother you have grieved so,
Or cares for one like you ! ”

A PLACID MAN'S EPITAPH

AS for my life, I've led it
With fair content and credit :
It said : " Take this." I took it.
Said : " Leave." And I forsook it.
If I had done without it
None would have cared about it,
Or said : " One has refused it
Who might have meetly used it."

1925.

THE NEW BOOTS

“THEY are his new boots,” she pursued ;

“ They have not been worn at all :
They stay there hung on the wall,
And are getting as stiff as wood.
He bought them for the wet weather,
And they are of waterproof leather.”

“ Why does her husband,” said I,
“ Never wear those boots bought new ? ”
To a neighbour of hers I knew ;
Who answered : “ Ah, those boots. Aye,
He bought them to wear whenever
It rained. But there they hang ever.

“ ‘ Yes,’ he laughed, as he hung them up,
‘ I’ve got them at last—a pair
I can walk in anywhere
Through rain and slush and slop.
For many a year I’ve been haunted
By thoughts of how much they were wanted.’

“ And she’s not touched them or tried
To remove them. . . . Anyhow,
As you see them hanging now
They have hung ever since he died
The day after gaily declaring :
‘ Ha-ha ! Now for wet wayfaring.
They’re just the chaps for my wearing ! ’ ”

THE MUSING MAIDEN

“ WHY so often, silent one,
Do you steal away alone ? ”
Starting, half she turned her head,
And guiltily she said :—

“ When the vane points to his far town
I go upon the hog-backed down,
And think the breeze that stroked his lip
Over my own may slip.

“ When he walks at close of day
I ramble on the white highway,
And think it reaches to his feet :
A meditation sweet !

“ When coasters hence to London sail
I watch their puffed wings waning pale ;
His window opens near the quay ;
Their coming he can see.

150 THE MUSING MAIDEN

“ I go to meet the moon at night ;
To mark the moon was our delight ;
Up there our eyesights touch at will
If such he practise still.”

W.P.V.

October 1866 (recopied).

LORNA THE SECOND

LORNA ! Yes, you are sweet,
But you are not your mother,
Lorna the First, frank, feat,
Never such another !—
Love of her could smother
Griefs by day or night ;
Nor could any other,
Lorna, dear and bright,
Ever so well adorn a
Mansion, coach, or cot,
Or so make men scorn a
Rival in their sight ;
Even you could not !
Hence I have to mourn a
Loss ere you were born ; a Lorna !

A DAUGHTER RETURNS

I LIKE not that dainty-cut raiment,
those earrings of pearl,
I like not the light in that eye ;
I like not the note of that voice. Never so was the girl
Who a year ago bade me good-bye !

Hadst but come bare and moneyless, worn
in the vamp, weather-gray,
But innocent still as before,
How warmly I'd lodged thee ! But sport
thy new gains far away ;
I pray thee now—come here no more !

And yet I'll not try to blot out every memory of thee ;
I'll think of thee—yes, now and then :
One who's watched thee since Time called thee out o' thy mother and me
Must think of thee ; aye, I know when ! . . .

A DAUGHTER RETURNS 153

When the cold sneer of dawn follows night-
 shadows black as a hearse,
And the rain filters down the fruit tree,
And the tempest mouths into the flue-top
 a word like a curse,
Then, then I shall think, think of thee !

Dec. 17, 1901.

THE THIRD KISSING-GATE

SHE foots it forward down the town,
Then leaves the lamps behind,
And trots along the eastern road
Where elms stand double-lined.

She clacks the first dim kissing-gate
Beneath the storm-strained trees,
And passes to the second mead
That fringes Mellstock Leaze.

She swings the second kissing-gate
Next the gray garden-wall,
And sees the third mead stretching down
Towards the waterfall.

And now the third-placed kissing-gate
Her silent shadow nears,
And touches with ; when suddenly
Her person disappears.

What chanced by that third kissing-gate
When the hushed mead grew dun ?
Lo—two dark figures clasped and closed
As if they were but one.

DRINKING SONG

ONCE on a time when thought began Lived Thales : he
Was said to see
Vast truths that mortals seldom can ;
It seems without
A moment's doubt
That everything was made for man.

Chorus.

Fill full your cups : feel no distress
That thoughts so great should now be less !

Earth mid the sky stood firm and flat,
He held, till came
A sage by name
Copernicus, and righted that.
We trod, he told,
A globe that rolled
Around a sun it warmed it at.

Chorus.

Fill full your cups : feel no distress ;
'Tis only one great thought the less !

But still we held, as Time flew by
And wit increased,
Ours was, at least,
The only world whose rank was high :
Till rumours flew
From folk who knew
Of globes galore about the sky.

Chorus.

Fill full your cups : feel no distress ;
'Tis only one great thought the less !

And that this earth, our one estate,
Was no prime ball,
The best of all,
But common, mean ; indeed, tenth-rate :
And men, so proud,
A feeble crowd,
Unworthy any special fate.

Chorus.

Fill full your cups : feel no distress ;
'Tis only one great thought the less !

Then rose one Hume, who could not see,
If earth were such,
Required were much
To prove no miracles could be :

“ Better believe
The eyes deceive
Than that God’s clockwork jolts,” said he.

Chorus.

Fill full your cups : feel no distress ;
’Tis only one great thought the less !

Next this strange message Darwin brings,
(Though saying his say
In a quiet way) ;
We all are one with creeping things ;
And apes and men
Blood-brethren,
And likewise reptile forms with stings.

Chorus.

Fill full your cups : feel no distress ;
’Tis only one great thought the less !

And when this philosoph had done
Came Doctor Cheyne :
Speaking plain he
Proved no virgin bore a son.
“ Such tale, indeed,
Helps not our creed,”
He said. “ A tale long known to none.”

Chorus.

Fill full your cups : feel no distress ;
’Tis only one great thought the less !

And now comes Einstein with a notion—
Not yet quite clear
To many here—
That's there's no time, no space, no motion,
Nor rathe nor late,
Nor square nor straight,
But just a sort of bending-ocean.

Chorus.

Fill full your cups : feel no distress ;
'Tis only one great thought the less !

So here we are, in piteous case :
Like butterflies
Of many dyes
Upon an Alpine glacier's face :
To fly and cower
In some warm bower
Our chief concern in such a place.

Chorus.

Fill full your cups : feel no distress
At all our great thoughts shrinking less :
We'll do a good deed nevertheless !

THE TARRYING BRIDEGROOM

WILDLY bound the bells this morning
For the glad solemnity ;
People are adorning
Chancel and canopy ;
But amid the peal a warning
Under-echo calls to me.

Where the lane divides the pasture
Long I watch each bend and stone,
Why not now as last year,
When he sought me—lone ?
Come, O come, and see, and cast here
Light and love on one your own !

How it used to draw him to me,
When I piped a pretty tune ;
Yes, when first he knew me
In my pink shalloon :
Little I guessed 'twould so undo me
Lacking him this summer noon !

THE DESTINED PAIR

TWO beings were drifting
Each one to the other :
No moment's veil-lifting
Or hint from another
Led either to weet
That the tracks of their feet
Were arcs that would meet.

One moved in a city,
And one in a village,
Where many a ditty
He tongued when at tillage
On dreams of a dim
Figure fancy would limn
That was viewless to him.

Would Fate have been kinder
To keep night between them ?—
Had he failed to find her
And time never seen them
Unite ; so that, caught
In no burning love-thought,
She had faded unsought ?

A MUSICAL INCIDENT

WHEN I see the room it hurts me
As with a pricking blade,
Those women being the memoried reason why my cheer deserts me.—
'Twas thus. One of them played
To please her friend, not knowing
That friend was speedily growing,
Behind the player's chair,
Somnolent, unaware
Of any music there.

I saw it, and it distressed me,
For I had begun to think
I loved the drowsy listener, when this arose to test me
And tug me from love's brink.
"Beautiful!" said she, waking
As the music ceased. "Heart-aching!"
Though never a note she'd heard
To judge of as averred—
Save that of the very last word.

All would have faded in me,
But that the sleeper brought News a week thence that her friend was dead. It stirred within me
Sense of injustice wrought
That dead player's poor intent—
So heartily, kindly meant—
As blandly added the sigher :
“ How glad I am I was nigh her,
To hear her last tune ! ”—“ Liar ! ”
I liped.—This gave love pause,
And killed it, such as it was.

JUNE LEAVES AND AUTUMN

I

LUSH summer lit the trees to green ;
But in the ditch hard by
Lay dying boughs some hand unseen
Had lopped when first with festal mien
They matched their mates on high.
It seemed a melancholy fate
That leaves but brought to birth so late
Should rust there, red and numb,
In quickened fall, while all their race
Still joyed aloft in pride of place
With store of days to come.

II

At autumn-end I fared that way,
And traced those boughs fore-hewn
Whose leaves, awaiting their decay
In slowly browning shades, still lay
Where they had lain in June

164 JUNE LEAVES AND AUTUMN

And now, no less embrowned and curst
Than if they had fallen with the first,
Nor known a morning more,
Lay there alongside, dun and sere,
Those that at my last wandering here
Had length of days in store.

Nov. 19, 1898.

NO BELL-RINGING

A BALLAD OF DURNOVER

THE little boy legged on through the dark,
To hear the New-Year's ringing :
The three-mile road was empty, stark,
No sound or echo bringing.

When he got to the tall church tower
Standing upon the hill,
Although it was hard on the midnight hour
The place was, as elsewhere, still ;

Except that the flag-staff rope, betossed
By blasts from the nor'-east,
Like a dead man's bones on a gibbet-post
Tugged as to be released.

" Why is there no ringing to-night ? "
Said the boy to a moveless one
On a tombstone where the moon struck white ;
But he got answer none.

“ No ringing in of New Year’s Day.”

He mused as he dragged back home ;
And wondered till his head was gray
Why the bells that night were dumb.

And often thought of the snowy shape
That sat on the moonlit stone,
Nor spoke nor moved, and in mien and
drape
Seemed like a sprite thereon.

And then he met one left of the band
That had treble-bobbed when young,
And said : “ I never could understand
Why, that night, no bells rung.”

“ True. There’d not happened such a thing
For half a century ; aye,
And never I’ve told why they did not ring
From that time till to-day. . . .

“ Through the week in bliss at The Hit or Miss ¹
We had drunk—not a penny left ;
What then we did—well, now ’tis hid,—
But better we’d stooped to theft !

¹ An old tavern now demolished. The full legend over the door ran, “ Hit or Miss : Luck’s All ! ”

“ Yet, since none other remains who can,
And few more years are mine,
I may tell you,” said the cramped old man.
“ We—swilled the Sacrament-wine.

“ Then each set-to with the strength of two,
Every man to his bell ;
But something was wrong we found ere long
Though what, we could not tell.

“ We pulled till the sweat-drops fell around,
As we’d never pulled before,
An hour by the clock, but not one sound
Came down through the bell-loft floor.

“ On the morrow all folk of the same thing spoke,
They had stood at the midnight time
On their doorsteps near with a listening ear,
But there reached them never a chime.

“ We then could read the dye of our deed,
And we knew we were accurst ;
But we broke to none the thing we had
done,
And since then never durst.”

“ I LOOKED BACK ”

I LOOKED back as I left the house,
And, past the chimneys and neighbour tree.

The moon upsided through the boughs :—
I thought : “ I shall a last time see
This picture ; when will that time be ? ”

I paused amid the laugh-loud feast,
And selfward said : “ I am sitting where,
Some night, when ancient songs have ceased,
‘ Now is the last time I shall share
Such cheer,’ ” will be the thought I bear.

An eye-sweep back at a look-out corner
Upon a hill, as forenight wore,
Stirred me to think : “ Ought I to warn her
That, though I come here times three-
score,
One day ’twill be I come no more ? ”

Anon I reasoned there had been,
 Ere quite forsaken was each spot,
 Bygones whereon I'd lastly seen
 That house, that feast, that maid forgot ;
 But when ?—Ah, I remembered not !

THE AGED NEWSPAPER SOLILOQUIZES

YES ; yes ; I am old. In me appears
The history of a hundred years ;
Empires', kings', captives', births and deaths,
Strange faiths, and fleeting shibboleths.
—Tragedy, comedy, throngs my page
Beyond all mummied on any stage :
Cold hearts beat hot, hot hearts beat cold,
And I beat on. Yes ; yes ; I am old.

CHRISTMAS: 1924

“PEACE upon earth!” was said. We sing it,
And pay a million priests to bring it.
After two thousand years of mass
We’ve got as far as poison-gas.

1924.

THE SINGLE WITNESS

“ D ID no one else, then, see them, man,
Lying among the whin ?
Did no one else, behold them at all
Commit this shameless sin,
But you, in the hollow of the down
No traveller’s eye takes in ? ”

“ Nobody else, my noble lord,
Saw them together there—
Your young son’s tutor and she. I made
A short cut from the fair,
And lit on them. I’ve said no word
About it anywhere.”

“ Good. . . . Now, you see my father’s sword,
Hanging up in your view ;
No hand has swung it since he came Home after Waterloo.
I’ll show it you. . . . There is the sword :
And this is what I’ll do.”

He ran the other through the breast,
Ere he could plead or cry.
“ It is a dire necessity,
But—since no one was nigh
Save you and they, my historied name
Must not be smirched thereby.”

HOW SHE WENT TO IRELAND

DORA'S gone to Ireland
Through the sleet and snow ;
Promptly she has gone there
In a ship, although
Why she's gone to Ireland
Dora does not know.

That was where, yea, Ireland,
Dora wished to be :
When she felt, in lone times,
Shoots of misery,
Often there, in Ireland,
Dora wished to be.

Hence she's gone to Ireland,
Since she meant to go,
Through the drift and darkness
Onward labouring, though
That she's gone to Ireland
Dora does not know.

DEAD "WESSEX" THE DOG
TO THE HOUSEHOLD

DO you think of me at all,
Wistful ones?

Do you think of me at all
As if nigh?

Do you think of me at all
At the creep of evenfall,
Or when the sky-birds call
As they fly?

Do you look for me at times,
Wistful ones?

Do you look for me at times
Strained and still?

Do you look for me at times,
When the hour for walking chimes,
On that grassy path that climbs
Up the hill?

You may hear a jump or trot,
Wistful ones,
You may hear a jump or trot—
Mine, as 'twere—

You may hear a jump or trot
On the stair or path or plot ;
But I shall cause it not,
Be not there.

Should you call as when I knew you,
Wistful ones,
Should you call as when I knew you,
Shared your home ;
Should you call as when I knew you,
I shall not turn to view you,
I shall not listen to you,
Shall not come.

THE WOMAN WHO WENT EAST

“ WHERE is that woman of the west,
Good Sir, once friends with me,
In rays of her own rareness drest,
And fired by sunset from the sea ?
Yes, she—once friends with me.”

“ —She went to sojourn in the east,
O stranger Dame, one day ;
Her own west land she reckoned least
Of all lands, with its weird old way,
So left it, Dame, one day :

“ Doubtless they prized her marvellous mould
At its right worth elsewhere,
Yea, Dame, and kept her shrined in gold,
So speaking, as one past compare ;
Aye, prized her worth elsewhere ! ”

—“ Must, must I then a story tell,
Old native, here to you,

Of peradventures that befel
Her eastward—shape it as 'twere new,
Old native, here to you ?

“ O unforgotten day long back,
When, wilful, east she sped
From you with her new Love. Alack,
Her lips would still be ripe and red
Had she not eastward sped !

“ For know, old lover, dull of eyes,
That woman, I am she :
This skeleton that Time so tries
Your rose of rareness used to be ;
Yes, sweetheart, I am she.”

NOT KNOWN

THEY know the wilings of the world,
The latest flippancy ;
They know each jest at hazard hurled,
But know not me.

They know a phasm they name as me,
In whom I should not find
A single self-held quality
Of body or mind.

THE BOY'S DREAM

PROVINCIAL town-boy he,—frail,
lame,
His face a waning lily-white,
A court the home of his wry, wrenched
frame,
Where noontide shed no warmth or light.

Over his temples—flat, and wan,
Where bluest veins were patterned keen,
The skin appeared so thinly drawn
The skull beneath was almost seen.

Always a wishful, absent look
Expressed it in his face and eye ;
At the strong shape this longing took
One guessed what wish must underlie.

But no. That wish was not for strength,
For other boys' agility,
To race with ease the field's far length,
Now hopped across so painfully.

He minded not his lameness much,
To shine at feats he did not long,
Nor to be best at goal and touch,
Nor at assaults to stand up strong.

But sometimes he would let be known
What the wish was :—to have, next spring,
A real green linnet—his very own—
Like that one he had late heard sing.

And as he breathed the cherished dream
To those whose secrecy was sworn,
His face was beautified by the theme,
And wore the radiance of the morn.

THE GAP IN THE WHITE

(178-)

SOMETHING had cracked in her mouth as she slept,
Having danced with the Prince long, and sipped his gold tass ;
And she woke in alarm, and quick, breathlessly, leapt
Out of bed to the glass.

And there, in the blue dawn, her mouth
now displayed
To her woe, in the white Level line of her teeth, a black gap she had made
In a dream's nervous bite.

“ O how can I meet him to-morrow ! ”
she said.

“ I'd won him—yes, yes ! Now, alas, he is lost ! ”

THE GAP IN THE WHITE 183

(That age knew no remedy.) Duly her dread
Proved the truth, to her cost.

And if you could go and examine her grave
You'd find the gap there,
But not understand, now that science can save,
Her unbounded despair.

FAMILY PORTRAITS

THREE picture-drawn people stepped out of their frames—

The blast, how it blew !

And the white-shrouded candles flapped
smoke-headed flames ;

—Three picture-drawn people came down
from their frames,

And dumbly in lippings they told me their names,

Full well though I knew.

The first was a maiden of mild wistful tone,
Gone silent for years,

The next a dark woman in former time
known ;

But the first one, the maiden of mild wistful tone,

So wondering, unpractised, so vague and alone,

Nigh moved me to tears.

The third was a sad man—a man of much gloom ;

And before me they passed

In the shade of the night, at the back of the room,
 The dark and fair woman, the man of much gloom,
 Three persons, in far-off years forceful, but whom
 Death now fettered fast.

They set about acting some drama, obscure,
 The women and he,
 With puppet-like movements of mute
 strange allure ;
 Yea, set about acting some drama, obscure,
 Till I saw 'twas their own lifetime's tragic amour,
 Whose course begot me ;

Yea—a mystery, ancestral, long hid from my reach
 In the perished years past,
 That had mounted to dark doings each against each
 In those ancestors' days, and long hid from my reach ;
 Which their restless enghostings, it seemed,
 were to teach
 Me in full, at this last.

But fear fell upon me like frost, of some hurt
 If they entered anew

On the orbits they smartly had swept when expert
 In the law-lacking passions of life,—of some hurt
 To their souls—and thus mine—which I fain would avert ;
 So, in sweat cold as dew,

“ Why wake up all this ? ” I cried out.
 “ Now, so late !
 Let old ghosts be laid ! ”
 And they stiffened, drew back to their frames and numb state, Gibbering : “ Thus are your own ways to shape, know too late ! ”
 Then I grieved that I'd not had the courage to wait
 And see the play played.

I have grieved ever since : to have balked future pain,
 My blood's tendance foreknown,
 Had been triumph. Nights long stretched awake I have lain
 Perplexed in endeavours to balk future pain
 By uncovering the drift of their drama.
 In vain,
 Though therein lay my own.

THE CATCHING BALLET OF THE WEDDING CLOTHES

(Temp. Guliel. IV.)

“ A GENTLEMAN’S coming
To court me, they say ;
The ringers are told,
And the band is to play.
O why should he do it
Now poor Jack’s away ?
I surely shall rue it :
Come, white witch, and say ! ”

“ The gentleman’s coming
To marry you, dear ;
They tell at the turnpikes
That he has been here !
He rode here in secret,
To gain eye of you :—
Throw over the sailor,
Is what I should do ! ”

“ I will not throw over
Poor Jack : no, indeed,

For a new unknown lover
Who loves at such speed,
And writes to the ringers,
And orders the band,
As if I could only
Obey his command !

“ La ! now here is something
Close packed in a box,
And strapped up and corded,
And held with two locks ! ”
“ Dear, that’s from him, surely,
As we may suppose ?
Ay, through the chink shining
I spy wedding clothes ! ”

“ Yes—here’s a drawn bonnet,
And tortoiseshell combs,
And a silk gown, silk stockings,
And scents of rare blooms ;
And shoes, too, of satin,
Quite past all my pride :
O, how will it end, witch ;
I can’t be his bride ! ”

“ Don’t waste you in weeping :
Not worth it is man !
Beshrew me, my deary,
I’ve shaped a new plan.

THE WEDDING CLOTHES 189

Wear the clothes of the rich one,
Since he will not see,
But marry the poor one
You love faithfully."

"Here's a last packet. . . . Never !
It knocks me to bits—
The ring ! 'Just to try on,
To see if it fits.'
O I cannot ! " . . . But Jack said,
Quite cool, when he came,
"Well, it will save money,
And be just the same."

The marriage took place,
Yes ; as vowed, she was true
To her dear sailor Jack
Ere the gentleman knew ;
But she wore the rich clothing,
Much joyed at such guise,
Yet fearing and trembling
With tears in her eyes.

And at midnight, between her
And him she had wed,
The gentleman's figure
Arose up and said :
"My too-cruel darling,
In spite of your oaths,
You have married the man
Of the ring and the clothes ! "

Thence on, would confront her,
 When sleep had grown slack,
 His face on the pillow
 Between her and Jack ;
 And he nightly kept whispering :
 “ You surely must see,
 Though your tongue-tip took him, Love,
 Your body took me.”

Till she sighed : “ Yes, my word,
 It must be confessed o’ me,
 Jack has ; but this man
 Can claim all the rest o’ me !
 And off to go with him
 Bewitched am I now :
 I’d fain not be two men’s,
 And won’t, anyhow ! ”

So she pleaded and pleaded
 From daybreak till dark,
 Converting the parish
 (Save parson and clerk.)
 She then wrote to Jack thus :
 “ I’m torn with mind-strife :
 She who wears a man’s bride-clothes
 Must be the man’s wife ! ”

And still she kept plaining,
 Till Jack he wrote : “ Aye ! ”
 And the villagers gathered,
 And, on a fixed day,

THE WEDDING CLOTHES 191

They went out alertly
And stood in a row,
Quite blithe with excitement
To see John's wife go.

Some were facing her dwelling,
And some on the bridge,
And some at the corner,
And some by the ridge.
With a nod and a word
The coach stopped at her door,
And she upped like a bird,
And they saw her no more.

'Twas told that, years after,
When autumn winds wave,
A wealthy old lady
Stood long at Jack's grave,
The while her coach waited :—
She mused there ; and then
She stepped in, and never Came thither again.

A WINSOME WOMAN

SONG

THERE'S no winsome woman so winsome as she ;
Some are flower-like in mouth,
Some have fire in the eyes,
Some feed a soul's drouth
Trilling words music-wise ;
But where are these gifts all in one found to be
Save in her known to me ?

What her thoughts are I read not, but this much I know,
That she, too, will pass
From the sun and the air
To her cave under grass ;
And the world will declare,
“ No such woman as his passioned utterances show
Walked this planet, we trow ! ”

THE BALLAD OF LOVE'S SKELETON

(179—)

“COME, let's to Culliford Hill and Wood,
And watch the squirrels climb,
And look in sunny places there
For shepherds' thyme.”

—“ Can I have heart for Culliford Wood,
And hill and bank and tree,
Who know and ponder over all Things done by me ! ”

—“ Then Dear, don hat, and come along :
We'll strut the Royal strand ;
King George has just arrived, his Court,
His guards, and band.”

—“ You are a Baron of the King's Court
From Hanover lately come,
And can forget in song and dance
What chills me numb.

“ Well be the royal scenes for you,
And band beyond compare,
But how is she who hates her crime
To frolic there ?

“ O why did you so urge and say
’Twould soil your noble name !—
I should have prized a little child,
And faced the shame.

“ I see the child—that should have been,
But was not, born alive ;
With such a deed in a woman’s life
A year seems five.

“ I asked not for the wifely rank,
Nor maiden honour saved ;
To call a nestling thing my own
Was all I craved.

“ For what’s the hurt of shame to one
Of no more note than me ?
Can littlest life beneath the sun
More littled be ? ”

—“ Nay, never grieve. The day is bright,
Just as it was ere then :
In the Assembly Rooms to-night
Let’s joy again !

“ The new Quick-Step is the sweetest dance
For lively toes and heels ;
And when we tire of that we'll prance
Bewitching reels.

“ Dear, never grieve ! As once we whirled
So let us whirl to-night,
Forgetting all things save ourselves
Till dawning light.

“ The King and Queen, Princesses three,
Have promised to meet there
The mayor and townsfolk. I've my card
And One to spare.

“ The Court will dance at the upper end ;
Only a cord between
Them and the burgher-throng below ;
A brilliant scene ! ”

—“ I'll go. You've still my heart in thrall :
Save you, all's dark to me.
And God knows what, when love is all,
The end will be ! ”

A PRIVATE MAN ON PUBLIC MEN

WHEN my contemporaries were driving
Their coach through Life with strain and striving,
And raking riches into heaps,
And ably pleading in the Courts
With smart rejoinders and retorts,
Or where the Senate nightly keeps
Its vigils, till their fames were fanned
By rumour's tongue throughout the land,
I lived in quiet, screened, unknown,
Pondering upon some stick or stone,
Or news of some rare book or bird
Latterly bought, or seen, or heard,
Not wishing ever to set eyes on
The surging crowd beyond the horizon,
Tasting years of moderate gladness
Mellowed by sundry days of sadness,
Shut from the noise of the world without,
Hearing but dimly its rush and rout,
Unenvying those amid its roar,
Little endowed, not wanting more.

CHRISTMAS IN THE ELGIN ROOM

BRITISH MUSEUM : EARLY LAST CENTURY

“ WHAT is the noise that shakes
the night,
And seems to soar to the Pole-star height ? ”

—“ Christmas bells,
The watchman tells
Who walks this hall that blears us captives with its blight.”

“ And what, then, mean such clangs, so clear ? ”

“ —’Tis said to have been a day of cheer,
And source of grace
To the human race
Long ere their woven sails winged us to exile here.

" We are those whom Christmas overthrew
 Some centuries after Pheidias knew
 How to shape us
 And bedrape us
 And to set us in Athena's temple for men's view.

" O it is sad now we are sold—
 We gods ! for Borean people's gold,
 And brought to the gloom
 Of this gaunt room
 Which sunlight shuns, and sweet Aurore
 but enters cold.

" For all these bells, would I were still Radiant as on Athenai's Hill."
 —" And I, and I ! "
 The others sigh,
 " Before this Christ was known, and we had men's good will."

Thereat old Helios could but nod,
 Throbbled, too, the Ilissus River-god,
 And the torsos there
 Of deities fair,
 Whose limbs were shards beneath some Acropolitan clod :

IN THE ELGIN ROOM 199

Demeter too, Poseidon hoar,
Persephone, and many more
Of Zeus' high breed,—
All loth to heed
What the bells sang that night which shook them to the core.

1905 and 1926.

“WE ARE GETTING TO THE END ”

WE are getting to the end of visioning
The impossible within this universe,
Such as that better whiles may follow
worse,
And that our race may mend by reasoning.

We know that even as larks in cages sing
Unthoughtful of deliverance from the curse
That holds them lifelong in a latticed hearse,
We ply spasmodically our pleasuring.

And that when nations set them to lay waste
Their neighbours' heritage by foot and horse,
And hack their pleasant plains in festering
seams,

“ GETTING TO THE END ” 201

They may again,—not warely, or from taste,

But tickled mad by some demonic force.—

Yes. We are getting to the end of dreams !

HE RESOLVES TO SAY NO
MORE

O MY soul, keep the rest unknown !
It is too like a sound of moan
When the charnel-eyed
Pale Horse has nighed :
Yea, none shall gather what I hide !

Why load men's minds with more to bear
That bear already ails to spare ?
From now alway
Till my last day
What I discern I will not say.

Let Time roll backward if it will ;
(Magians who drive the midnight quill
With brain aglow
Can see it so,)
What I have learnt no man shall know.

And if my vision range beyond
The blinkered sight of souls in bond,
—By truth made free—
I'll let all be,
And show to no man what I see.

Printed in Great Britain by R. & R. CLARK, LIMITED, Edinburgh.

 KU-595-374